Supplies Rommel Won't Get

Among other things, Axis forces cornered in northeastern Tunisia face the growing problem of supplies as Allied air and naval forces pound ceaselessly at the shipping lanes between Italy and Tunisia. This spectacular U. S. army Air Forces photo shows a 6,000-ton Axis cargo vessel being blown to smithereens off Bizerte. It apparently was carrying ammunition.

Lewis Defies WLB, Snubs Wage Hearing

UMW LEADER STAYS AWAY FROM SESSION

BOARD PROCEEDS

Conducts Meeting With Only Operators Present, General Coal Strike Feared.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— With John L. Lewis, refusing to attend, the war labor board and the soft coal operators held a 41-minute session this morning and then adjourned. The board expected to issue a formal statement soon.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, today defied the authority of the War Labor Board and refused to appear for a hearing into the union's wage controversy with soft coal operators.

A spokesman for the mine union announced in New York that Lewis has no plans whatever to leave that city for Washington today.

Neither did Lewis send any representatives of the United Mine Workers to the board meeting. The labor chieftain has maintained that the WLB is "packed" against unions.

The hearing was scheduled to open at 10 a. m. sharp and counsel for operators were present at that time. After waiting 10 minutes Chairman William H. Davis called the meeting to order and the deliberations began with no union officials present.

Southern operators were represented by former Senator Edward Burke and northern operators were led by Charles O'Neill.

The board's hearing, with Lewis absent, now turned out to be an ex-parte proceeding. Under this

Two Millions Still Needed In War Loans

County Has 5 More Days To Reach Goal; Appeal To Small Investors.

With five days to go, Richland countians must purchase $2,016,777 in war bonds to put the county second War Loan drive over its goal of $6,649,000. Total sales to date amount to $4,632,222.

H. G. Brunner and Paul M. Eliot, co-chairmen of the drive, today warned that although the campaign is within sight of its goal, there can be no let up on the part of the small investor until the finish line has been passed.

Yesterday's figures showed a slump in subscriptions by non-bank investors. Only $68,358.75 was added to the non-bank subscriptions making a total of $4,632,222.20. A total of $1,290,000 has been purchased by the banks.

A report from Washington today told of the response of the nation to the tragic execution of the American flyers in Tokyo as the sale of bonds took a decided spurt.

Although the total bonds sold toward the $13,000,000,000 goal is mounting, the treasury officials said that "we should be doing a lot better. The renewed efforts of many states is showing on the returns, but the people are still lethargic about the drive."

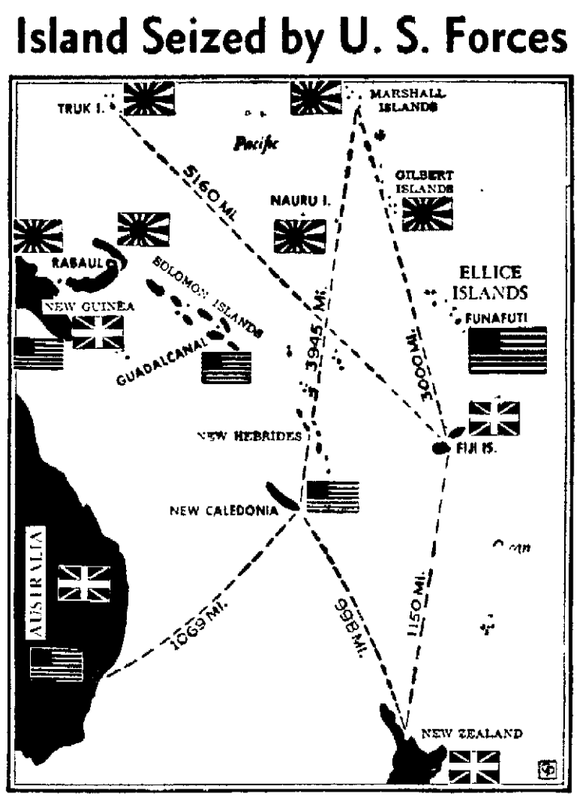
Another scheme to promote more sales has been instigated by the state of Oregon. For each flyer who lost his life over Tokyo, Oregon has set the goal $1,000,000 higher in order "to wipe Tokyo off the map."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau left for a tour of the country to add the last final push to the drive in order to not only bring it over the top but to shoot the total $2,000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000 higher.

First report from the intensive campaigns going on throughout Richland county is one from Lexington. Lexington school pupils have sold a total of $3,294.45 in bonds and stamps of which $1,458.15 was sold by the pupils of the first six grades and $1,836.30 by the upper six grade pupils.

Top salesmen of the upper six grades are Mary Ellen Reel with sales amounting to $502.20 credited to her, Gene Heidelbaugh, $209.25, and Carma Price, $126.50. The largest bond sales were made among the first six grade pupils by Clarence Ross, $226, Donna Marie Fuhrer $113.50 and Sam Shurtleff, $93.75.

Island Seized by U. S. Forces



According to a disclosure by the navy, American forces have occupied at least one island in the Jap-dominated Ellice group in the South Pacific as shown on this map. The revelation was made by the navy in an announcement that Jap bombers raided Funafuti, which was described as a "U. S. occupied position." The Ellice islands, comprising nine clusters of low coral atolls dotted over a 400-mile Pacific expanse, lie about midway between the Gilbert and the Fiji islands. The islands lie athwart the American air route from Hawaii to Australia.

Effect Giant Secret Shift To Blast Foe

Second U. S. Army Corps Moves Swiftly To Northern Tunisia Front, Scores Gain of Seven Miles In Drive Towards Beaches of Tunis.

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Thousands of American troops in a secret, lightning shift to the north Tunisian front have struck six miles into the Axis defense lines in a general Allied offensive that rolled the enemy back as much as seven miles toward the beaches of Tunis.

Aided by another record-breaking Allied aerial assault, the British First army, the American Second corps and the Corps France D'Afrique slugged their way with infantry and tanks into the Axis western flank while the Eighth army fought off desperate counter-attacks on the coastal road to Bou Fiche.

The Germans, despite a furious pounding by 1,500 Allied aerial sorties that virtually drove the Luftwaffe from the Tunisian skies, fought desperately on every front against the massed Allied weight and casualties were reported heavy on both sides.

The Americans went into action on the road from Sedjenane to Mateur, 20 miles southwest of Bizerte, after tens of thousands of men and thousands of vehicles had been moved from the southern front near Maknassy with speed and secrecy that drew war praise from Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, who coordinated their operations with the British First army attack.

"The senior British officers have the fullest admiration for the excellent staff work and particularly for the speed and secrecy with which the move was carried out by the Second corps," Alexander said in a statement issued from his headquarters.

The American attack began at dawn on Friday in the hills north of the Mateur road with Djebel Marata and Djebel Ainchouna, five miles to the south, as the first objectives. The Germans tried to trap the Americans. They apparently believed the Yanks were green troops. All of them failed. The Americans captured three hills in veteran fashion.

Front dispatches said the Second corps was becoming crafty, and battle-hardened. In this operation they were given powerful support by American bombers which raided enemy positions, the Mateur railroad junction and enemy truck columns.

The American troops scrambled through intense German mortar and artillery fire to capture the two main hill positions and then withstood several sharp enemy counter-attacks before they could consolidate their new positions.

South of the Mateur road, another American infantry outfit assaulted Djebel Rmel, a strongly entrenched position northeast of Oued Zarga, and captured it quickly. A counter-attack by the Germans, supported by artillery, failed to drive off the Americans but fighting continued.

The Allied forces were hitting the enemy today with everything they could bring into action but the great battle along a 110-mile front still was in a confused stage. At headquarters it was felt that the result was inevitable because the greatly superior weight of Allied tanks and manpower, but the cost of victory will undoubtedly be high.

(A British broadcast today said that the Allied forces were using

Steps Into Dispute on Rubber and Gasoline

Truman Committee Seeks to Settle Controversy Among Nation's Top Production Chiefs.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The senate Truman committee today moved to settle the bitter dispute among the government's top production chiefs over the rubber and high octane gasoline programs.

The senate committee stepped into the controversial picture as high officials swapped charges in apparent disregard of government's pledged intention to give war facts to the people.

Sen. Truman (D., Mo.) chairman of the committee, said that an investigation will be conducted as quickly as possible to halt the quarreling among government officials and give the public the facts.

Acting speedily, the committee called War Production Chairman Donald M. Nelson to be the first witness in the probe. He appears Wednesday. Rubber Director William M. Jeffers, Undersecretary of War Patterson and Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes, all participants in the fight, are also expected to be summoned.

The inquiry sprang first from charges of Patterson that the high octane gasoline program is being hampered and planes grounded by the demand of Jeffers for materials for synthetic rubber plants. Ickes supported Patterson to a lesser extent.

Nelson was called because as WPB chairman it has been his job to allocate materials to the various production programs.

Sen. Gillette (D) Iowa, chairman of an agriculture subcommittee, already had planned to call Jeffers and Information Chief Davis to air their conflict over the OWI's rubber report which was pessimistic and brought heated criticism from Jeffers. Gillette said an inquiry should also determine whether the war department has built huge plants for production of essential munitions which now are not being used. He also said the country is entitled to know who has directed the high octane gas program, and whether the OWI cleared the newspaper release of Patterson.

He said that if the charges against Jeffers are true he should resign. If they are not he added, those making the charges should be ready to present their resignations.

NEW STAMPS

Blue G, H and J Coupons Good For Canned Food Buying.

Today is the first day for using Blue G, H, and J stamps for buying canned and processed foods, the Office of Price Administration reminded housewives today.

OPA also issued these reminders to housekeepers shopping with war ration book two:

Blue stamps D, E, F which have been in use since March 25, continue good through April 30.

Blue G, H and J stamps may be used through the end of May.

All red stamps, lettered A through D are now good for buying meat, cheese, butter and other fats and oils, as well as canned fish. They expire April 30. Red E stamps become valid tomorrow.

8 INJURED IN 2 CAR MISHAPS

Trolley Accidents Occur Simultaneously Friday.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Two streetcar mishaps which occurred almost simultaneously on opposite sides of Cleveland yesterday injured 28 persons.

Mrs. Helen Mathew and her daughter, Helen, 3, were knocked down and bruised when a streetcar ran through an open switch and jumped the tracks.

Twenty six persons were injured when one streetcar rammed to the rear of another at the west end of the Detroit-Superior High Level bridge. Two of the injured remained hospitalized today.

MAKES IT TOUGH

Fisher Rules Letter Must Accompany Liquor Prescription.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— State Liquor Director Don Fisher has rejected sale of liquor by retail stores on doctor's prescriptions because, he said, investigation showed many prescriptions were fraudulent.

He directed that prescriptions be honored only if the liquor department receives a letter from a doctor identifying the patient by name and age and outlining his medicinal liquor requirements.

'GET BUSY!'

FDR Orders Strikers Back to Jobs; They Picket Anyhow.

WASHINGTON - (AP)— President Roosevelt today ordered strikers at the Celanese corporation of America, Newark, N. J. to return to work immediately and gave them until noon Monday to comply.

Non-compliance by then, he said, will result in government steps to see to it that the plant is reopened.

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—Strikers at the Celanese corporation of America's big plastic plant here continued picketing today after President Roosevelt had ordered their immediate return to work.

KILLER APPEALS

Supreme Court Asked To Review Conviction.

COLUMBUS - (U.P.)— The Ohio supreme court today was asked to review the conviction of Anthony Treat who has been sentenced to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary, May 21, for the rape-slaying of Helen Sellers, 10, at Cincinnati.

The appelate court previously upheld Treat's conviction.

JAIL'S EMPTY

FINDLAY —(U.P.)— Sheriff Lyle Harvitt today reported a new record for the Hancock county jail which was empty yesterday, the first time in 27 years.

Mansfield Youth Faces Charge After Posing as Soldier

A 17-year-old Mansfield youth who told officers he wanted to see how he looked in an army uniform, was held today by police as the second Mansfielder arrested in the past week for masquerading as a soldier.

The youth was taken into custody by Capt. Paul E. Whipp shortly before 2 a. m. today on East Sixth street after the would-be soldier had visited several night clubs with his girl friend.

Robert Paul Lambrecht, 27, of 272 West Fourth street, was turned over to federal officers at Canton three days ago on a charge

ARMS DUMP SEIZED

BELFAST—(U.P.)—Belfast police today seized an arms dump of the Irish Republican army believed to contain weapons stored for an outbreak tomorrow timed to coincide with the anniversary of the 1916 Easter Sunday rebellion.

ACQUITS 3 OF LYNCH CHARGE

Federal Jury Frees Men in Slaying of Negro.

HATTIESBURG, Miss —(AP)— Three Jones county men, charged with violating civil liberty statutes in the lynching of a Negro at Laurel last October, were acquitted by a federal court jury here today.

It was the first trial of white men charged in a Negro lynching case in the south in 10 years.

The defendants were Luther Holder, deputy sheriff and Jones county jailer, Barney Jones and Allen Pryor.

The federal charges grew out of the lynching on Oct. 16, 1942, of Howard Wash, 49-year-old Negro, who was convicted of slaying his employer.

PLANT CLOSED

Wildcat Strike Halts Tank Output at Chrysler.

DETROIT (U.P.) Tank production at the Chrysler tank arsenal was halted today by what company officials described as "wild-cat" strike.

A strike of 500 employes in one department in protest against management refusal to reinstate a suspended worker forced closing of the entire plant, a Chrysler spokesman disclosed.

The employe was suspended for a day and a half yesterday for allegedly leaving his job to "smoke and loiter."

FOUR DIE IN BOSTON BLAZE

Flames Sweep Through Apartment House.

BOSTON (INS)— Four persons were burned to death today in a $10,000 fire which raged through a five-story south end apartment house.

Mrs. Margaret McAuliffe, 36 and her daughter, Joan, 2, were dead on arrival at Boston City hospital.

The death of John Bohonan, 8, followed by that of his father, Harry Bohonan, occurred shortly afterward in the same hospital. Their deaths brought the week's toll of lives in Boston fires to nine.

PAY-GO MEASURE GETS APPROVAL

Democrats Vote Out Bill to Use Lower Rates and Higher Exemptions.

WASHINGTON - (AP) A Democratic-sponsored, pay-as-you-go bill, applying the lower rates and higher personal exemptions of 1941 to 1942 income in order to get on a current tax basis, was approved today by the house ways and means committee.

The action came on voice vote, with the Republicans sitting in silence, after the committee, also vocally, had rejected first the Republican-supported modified Ruml skip-a-year-plan and another compromise proposed by Representative Robertson (D., Va.).

The committee agreed to bring

Easter Weather To Be Warm With Showers Possible

The reticent weatherman today withheld any news about prospective showers to sprinkle new Easter outfits tomorrow, but he promised that it will be too warm for heavy wraps anyway.

His terse forecast said "Warmer this afternoon. Little change in temperature tonight." There was nothing about what to expect Sunday.

Less restricted by war-time censorship, amateur forecasters read bad news for Easter paraders in the behavior of the barometer at the city building. The indicator has been falling since morning, they said, indicating showers by tonight or tomorrow.

Hopeful owners of new Easter hats and suits found something in today's weather to cheer about, however, with the mercury going all the way up to 65 at noon. For the third straight day skies were clear and there was a heavy dew this morning, according to the homespun forecasters.

Yesterday's high was 67 and the low this morning was 46, marking the first time in several days that there wasn't any frost.

PLUG: U. S. Closes Gap In Its Defenses by Ellice Isle Coup

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States, by establishing a base on Funafuti in the Ellice islands, has plugged the biggest hole in its chain of defense positions along the supply line to the South Pacific.

(A United Press dispatch from Pearl Harbor commenting on the occupation of Funafuti said perhaps significantly "American forces working quietly in the Pacific have accomplished much during the past year, not all of which can publicly be recorded until it is definitely known that the enemy is aware of it. However it can be said that some of these developments may be a real surprise in the future.")

Experts pointed out today that had the Japanese remained in control of the Ellice group and developed bases there, they could have threatened the Samoan Islands to the southeast, the Fijis to the south and the Phoenix Islands to the northeast—all Allied defense links.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said today that American forces have been on Funafuti for some time. A navy spokesman said the occupation was accomplished without opposition from the Japanese who had been reported in the Ellice group during the early phases of the Pacific war.

Knox described the establish-

WORRIED: Finns See Hint of Scandanavia Blow In U. S. Move

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—An apparent turn for the worse in Finnish-American relations today provoked speculation that the Scandinavian peninsula may play an important part in Allied spring offensive plans.

The United States has moved almost all of its legation staff from Helsinki to Stockholm. That was revealed to the world by the Berlin radio, and confirmed later by the state department only on questioning.

Officials described the move as only "an administrative measure." But Finnish circles were worried.

The exact number of diplomats involved was not revealed but apparently all military attaches, comprising the bulk of the legation staff, have moved.

There was no indication that Finland, in turn, would remove from Washington any part of her sizeable legation.

Speculation on spring military activities in Scandinavia stems from President Roosevelt's specific mention earlier of Norway as a possible place for a second European front.

Among other hints that fight-

STAY OFF JOBS

15,000 War Workers Still Out at Ford Plant.

WINDSOR, Ont.—(U.P.)—A strike of 15,000 war production workers at the Ford Motor company's Windsor plants remained stalemated today with indications the deadlock would continue during the week-end.

A spokesman at local 200 headquarters, United Automobile Workers (CIO), said no new developments were expected before Monday and that none of the men would return to work over the week-end unless the strike is settled.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Down in Miami recently a jury in the federal court convicted Max Pollack, alias Max Caldwell, of conspiring to violate the draft act and thereby removed from circulation a filthy underworld racketeer who had enjoyed a long spell of prosperity and terroristic power in the political slum of the party of humanity, the field of labor organization in Chicago.

Pegler

Caldwell, as he calls himself, had been a muscleman in a number of typical crooked Chicago unions of the American Federation of Labor and had persuaded Michael Savachka, his secretary-treasurer, to go into hiding in June, 1941, after a group of retail store employes summoned the nerve to revolt and demand an accounting of their money. There is no way of ascertaining how much Caldwell stole because Savachka was supposed to have custody of the membership books and accounts and they have disappeared. The membership is believed to have been somewhere between 8,000 and 10,000 clerks earning around $25 a week on the average and the initiation fee was $25 and the dues were $2 a month.

The union was Local 1248 of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association.

Caldwell's record contains no intimation that he ever did a day's work in his life or that he ever was anything but an underworld racketeer, but he was perfectly acceptable, of course, to the Chicago Federation of Labor and married the daughter of an influential unioneer in the headquarters in the central organization. Before muscling into the clerks' union he had been a bootlegger and davekeeper and business agent of the waiters' union. Before that he had been fined $200 and sentenced to six months in jail at Crown Point, Ind., for bootlegging, but although he did pay the fine there is no proof that he ever served the six months.

In October, 1932, he was accused of shooting a man, in 1934 he was charged with beating up a waiter in his role of business agent for the union but acquitted by a jury. And in 1936 when a joint that he operated called the Show club burned out, a fire marshal reported that his men had smelled kerosene and had found two empty cans. The attorney for the fire department questioned Brother Caldwell about the fire but nothing came of it all.

During his prosperous years as a boss custodian of labor's gains Caldwell bought the home of Frank Nitti, the old Capone gorilla, on Miami Beach, for he was very fond of the social life in the hibernating place of the criminal scum where several other Chicago gangsters of the union movement had villas and he had made frequent airplane flights there, accompanied by other vermin, at the expense of the faceless clerks back home.

His racket, or union, was finally thrown out of the Chicago Federation of Labor in February, 1940, but not because he was thieving from the toilers. That is accepted union practice, as Justice Felix Frankfurter might say, but Caldwell had tried to muscle into the territory of another local recognized by the federation and that, of course, was a serious offense because the AFL is very sensitive about strict observance of the territorial rights of its component rackets.

After the heat was turned on and the union treasury was found to contain nothing but a couple of old rubber stamps and a blackjack, Caldwell was discovered living under an alias in the Stevens hotel in Chicago. When his safety deposit box in the hotel strong room was opened, the yield was $1200 in cash, $5900 in governmental securities, jewelry of an estimated value of $30,000 and papers showing that Nitti's home in Miami Beach had been knocked down for $25,250. This would have been a bargain because the place cost Nitti more than $50,000 to build. Brother Nitti is now dead, having deceased himself recently when he was indicted in New York along with a number of other selfless servants of the working stiffs in the Brown-Bioff investigation.

Raymond Clapper is on his way to Sweden. His column will be resumed shortly.

Savachka didn't come up with the union boss when he finally was caught as a draft dodger in Miami where he was hiding under an alias, so in all probability a little vacation away from it all on the draft conspiracy charge will be the total of Caldwell's inconvenience.

Attorney for the victims have estimated that he got away with $900,000 but that is a lawyer's figure and perhaps too large and anyway this baboon probably had to cut up the graft with other labor spokesmen of the old Capone mob.

Notwithstanding the flagrancy of the conspiracy to duck the draft and thwart the investigation of Caldwell's graft, Federal Judge William H. Campbell, of Chicago, permitted Savachka to be inducted into the army like any decent young man. He was delinquent from Dec. 17, 1941, until October, 1942, during which time a lot of other nondelinquents unconnected with the defense of labor's gains were killed in action.

Caldwell was all the gall in the world. Do you know what he was doing in Miami after the racket blew up in Chicago? He was a publisher running the kind of sheet known as a boiler room, meaning one that generates pressure and heat to obtain advertising, a common form of journalism in the union racket.

TRUMAN PANEL STANDS GROUND ON SINKINGS

Reports Navy Studied Report Which Knox Criticizes Before Its Release.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate Truman committee stood its ground against Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today on its report that Allied shipping losses in 1942 exceeded the combined American and British merchant ship construction during the year.

The committee reported Thursday that Axis submarines had sunk an average of 1,000,000 tons a month during 1942 and "exceeded new construction built by the United States and Great Britain." Knox told a press conference yesterday that the committee's 12,000,000-ton loss figure was "grossly inaccurate."

"While it may not prove to be perfect in every detail, it is in the aggregate the most accurate report on the subject to date," reported Sen. James M. Mead, D., N. Y., committee member who made the report to the senate.

Mead and Sen. Ralph O. Brewster, R., Me., another committee member, both throw responsibility for accuracy of the figures back to Knox's navy department. Both of them pointed out that the report was submitted to the navy department, which had the privilege of protest and suggesting correction, several days before it was made public.

Knox told his press conference that he assumed the Truman committee got its figures "from unauthorized and uninformed sources because the loss figures never have been given out." Mead said the report was compiled "after consultation with practically every source having to do with shipping."

Knox also criticized the report because it failed to stipulate whether gross tonnage or deadweight tonnage were used. He pointed out that construction figures usually are listed in deadweight tons, whereas loss figures usually are listed in gross tonnage.

Brewster said the committee report dealt with deadweight tonnage in both instances.

FUGITIVE SHOT IN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE FBI MEN

Ex-Convict Threatened to Blow Up Captors With Nitroglycerine Bombs.

MARTINS FERRY—(AP)—Critically wounded trying to shoot his way out of a federal bureau of investigation trap, Carl Straka, 41, was guarded in a hospital here today, ending a 10-year search for a fugitive agents said "made a name for himself" threatening to blast would-be captors with nitroglycerine bombs.

Four agents, tipped on his whereabouts, cornered the robbery suspect in a restaurant at Tiltonville and wounded him in the leg, side and abdomen when he tried to shoot his way to freedom, said A. H. Belmont, chief of the Cincinnati FBI office.

The former Bellaire radio salesman, an alien and native of Hungary, is under indictment on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile and is "wanted by the state of Ohio in connection with numerous safe jobs and grocery store robberies in eastern Ohio," Belmont asserted.

He has been a fugitive since breaking out of jail at Cambridge Aug. 31, 1933, while charged with breaking and entering. The FBI agent said five persons were indicted earlier this week on charges of harboring him.

Belmont described the former Ohio penitentiary inmate as particularly dangerous and said Straka "made a name for himself by carrying a bottle of nitroglycerine and threatening to throw it at anyone trying to ambush him.

"We went after him on a sort of challenge basis," the agent asserted. "Simply because he was so dangerous and had to be put out of the way. He was a very elusive gentleman."

Straka served part of a 1 to 20-year Ohio penitentiary sentence for auto theft and was released in 1930, Belmont declared. In 1932 he was arrested in Newark on a charge of possessing burglar tools and jumped $1,500 bond.

Arrested at Cambridge the following year, he escaped and had been at large since, the agent said. He is also under indictment on a charge of participating in the robbery of a postoffice agency at Glen Robbins in 1937.

Indicted by a federal grand jury last Wednesday on charges of harboring Straka from last September until March were Charles Zascavage, 37, of Dillonville; Mae Boyle, also known as Mae Williams, 33, and William E. Donnelly, 57, both of Steubenville, and Peter Joseph Smith, 47, and Ella Smith, 47, both of Williamstown, W. Va., formerly of Bellaire.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Meet Such Interesting People.

(And It's the Funny Little Things About Them That Fascinate You.)

GEORGE MURPHY is one of the few screen stars alive who, when he visits Manhattan, checks in at a hotel by asking for just a room and bath, instead of the usual sumptuous suite. . . . Morton Gould, the 28-year-old musical genius, who is one of my artistic favorites, can do more things with an orchestral arrangement than Doolittle can do with a plane—but he's terribly shy.

Kilgallen

Only his best friends know that his consuming desire is to meet the girls named Candy Jones and Choo Choo Johnson. . . . Merle Oberon likes a touch of white in everything she wears—whether it's an ermine wrap over an evening gown, a crisp white blouse with a suit, or just sparkling white gloves with anything. . . . Al Jolson always begs the elevator not to stop at other floors after it has picked him up—not that he's in a hurry, but crowded elevators make him terribly nervous.

Carmen Amaya carries loose unset stones around in a handkerchief, and doles out little emeralds, rubies and diamonds to those she's particularly fond of. (Don't you wish she adored you?) . . . The one thing that fascinates British screen comic Alan Mowbray more than anything under the sun is the sound of "Prince" Mike Romonoff's voice saying anything at all in the English accent most experts agree he acquired in Brooklyn. Mowbray marvels that "Mike makes me sound like a phony Englishman." . . . One of the least publicized but most fascinating characters in town is known as Jimmy the Trusty. Jimmy has been in and out of the better jails a half dozen times, and has the records at the parole board to prove it. But now he spends his time guesting on various cozy and high-minded radio programs, such as Mary Margaret McBride's, plugging for his new organization, which is called "The Be Good to Your Mother Club."

Ilona Massey loves to study faces and will stare at you quite unabashed for ten or fifteen minutes at a stretch. (She's not married yet.) . . . Vincent Youmans (the composer), is addicted to absent-mindedly putting on his reading glasses before he answers the telephone. His sub-conscious doesn't think he can talk unless he can see. . . . Gypsy Rose Lee is a black stocking addict. It doesn't matter what color her dress is, her nylons are invariably inky. . . . Max Cassvan, the Casbah proprietor, takes so many baths each day (three is his minimum number of duckings) that he had to install a telephone beside his tub so he could carry on his business affairs. . . . Beatrice Kay starts every day with a Clover club cocktail before breakfast—a habit she acquired when someone told her Caruso did the same at the height of his singing career.

Theodore Dreiser has been known to claim he doesn't like to wear hats—but every time you see him around town he's sporting a ten-gallon jet black number that could only be purchased by a lad who really CARED about headgear. . . . Terry Lawlor, the red-headed thrush, adores consulting numerologists, astrologists, crystal gazers and all kinds of seers, and dashes from one to another. But when one warned her to stay out of automobiles for a whole week (oh, this was in the days when there still WERE automobiles) she ignored his advice—and was promptly injured in an accident. She was a good sport about it, though; the minute she was up and around again she went back to congratulate the prophet on his accuracy. . . . Anne Shirley is so susceptible to "mike fright" that she becomes ill after radio broadcasts, and has to be put to bed. The lucrative offers she's turned down for that reason would buy a girl a lot of sable.

SENT TO PEN

Defendant Draws Sentence on Charge of Forgery.

Found guilty of violating his probation imposed on a forgery charge last September, Walter Fannin, 43, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Ohio Penitentiary by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in common pleas court this morning.

Fannin was arrested in Akron Thursday and was returned to Mansfield by Sheriff Frank Robinson yesterday.

Making an eloquent plea for clemency, Fannin offered to make full restitution of the approximate $50 he was alleged to have obtained by sending telegrams fraudulently signed. He made similar promises and payment, court attaches said, when he was placed on probation last September.

FACES CHARGE IN ALE THEFT

Mansfielder Accused of Breaking And Entering Beer Agency.

Caught with a case of ale in his arms at the rear of the Waldorf beer agency on East Sixth street about 1 a. m. today, Wilbur Lytle, colored, North Main road, was taken into custody by police and charged with breaking and entering.

Police found the door to a storage building back of the agency had been forced and several cases of beer and ale had been stolen.

A white man arrested a short time later at Sixth street and Franklin avenue was being questioned today in connection with the burglary. Two cases of beer believed stolen at the same time were recovered at a Franklin avenue address.

UNVEILS FLAG

Butler Methodist Church to Dedicate Memorial to Men In Service.

Unveiling of the Butler Methodist church service flag will highlight Easter services there Sunday at 9:30 a. m. The flag contains more than 50 stars, symbolizing the number of church members who have entered the armed services.

Ronald Thompson, home on furlough from the United States army, and Russell Bebout, a veteran of World war I, will participate in the ceremony.

Gifts will be presented to families with members in the service. Recognition of new members and baptismal service will be held.

POST-WAR FOOD STUDY PLANNED

House Agriculture Committee Seeks Data So Congress Can Act This Year.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Chairman Fulmer (D., S. C.) disclosed today that the house agriculture committee is preparing to open hearings on postwar food production problems "so that something can be done by congress this year."

Fulmer said that his committee's investigation, independent of the forthcoming international food conference at Hot Springs, W. Va., will embrace the development of farm products for industrial use as well as for food consumption.

"We want to be ready to meet the tremendous postwar problems that will confront the farmers of the country," the white-haired house veteran declared. "And we want to be prepared to fill the gigantic demands for food to feed the starving peoples overseas.

From the United Nations food conference, Fulmer said his committee undoubtedly will receive much useful information. But although the U. S. Delegation is scheduled to report to the agriculture committees of house and senate before going to Hot Springs, the house inquiry and bill-drafting job will be conducted "on its own," he added.

One farm product industrial use Fulmer cited for consideration is that involving cotton, whereby this major southern crop would be blended with wood pulp for newsprint and other paper production.

Fulmer, who represents a cotton state, said that about four and a quarter million bales of cotton annually could be consumed in this process.

PROFESSOR DIES

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Death today claimed Dr. John L. Clifton, 61, who was appointed state education director by former Gov. Vic Donahey in 1927, serving in that capacity until 1931. He was a professor of education at Ohio State university.

DATES To Remember

April 25—Easter Sunday.

April 26—Plan for zone purchasing of liquor goes into effect.

May 7—Army-Navy E to be presented Hughes-Keenan company.

June 5 — Outdoor commencement exercises at Senior high school.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield's CCD war services division, headed by Mrs. John Pierce, received a pat on the back today from Delbert L. Pugh, state war services co-ordinator, who said in a letter to Mrs. Pierce that the Mansfield block plan is being used as an example for other Ohio cities. The CCD unit here was praised for completing its shate-the-ride survey ahead of other sections of the state and for its work in conducting drives for tin cans, grease, and other salvage materials. Under the block plan, workers are assigned to make personal appeals in every section of the city and county.

Mansfield friends of Major Charles G. Duy, jr., former Westinghouse employe, "spotted" his picture among members of the "Clay-Pigeon Squadron" of American fliers in England shown in an illustrated article about them in this week's Saturday Evening Post. Major Duy, now in charge of the ground crew of a bomber squadron in England, formerly was with the Westinghouse advertising department. While with Westinghouse he started the "Inverted V" campaign to spike rumors. The emblem of the campaign was two fingers pointed downward in the shape of a "V." Mrs. Duy, the former Ardell Bohler of Mansfield, is living in Marion.

Says They're Angry, Too, Over Executions, Reports Many Joining Army.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Director Elmer Davis of the office of war information appears to be trying to stem the angry congressional demands for reprisals against loyal Japanese-Americans as payment for the execution of some of the Doolittle fliers.

In his weekly radio review last night, he answered not only demands heard in congress to strip American-born Japanese of their citizenship, but the recent statements of military officials on the west coast that "A Jap's a Jap."

Davis said that thousands of Japanese-Americans who were born in the United States and educated in American schools are as aroused as the rest of the country about the executions.

Davis pointed out that at Camp Shelby, Miss., 3,000 American soldiers of Japanese ancestry put the better part of a month's pay into war bonds the day after the executions were announced "to show what they thought of the Tokyo performance."

"Thousands of other Americans of Japanese blood, from Hawaii and from relocation camps in the west, are now being inducted into the army—all of them tested and known for their loyalty to their country, and all of them just as eager to avenge this sort of behavior as are any other Americans," he said.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—If what the movies need is a new Latin romantic star and I haven't the faintest idea if that's what they need or not—it seems possible they've found him in Arturo de Cordova, a good-looking, wavy-haired product of old Mexico who may be no Valentino but who undoubtedly and definitely is de Cordova.

De Cordova already has been a successful newspaperman, radio broadcaster, athlete and star of Mexican movies. Now he seems well on his way to Hollywood success—at any rate he's under contract and is worrying about his income taxes.

Coons

"These taxes, th'y're big," he commented. "But the cause is good. Yes."

Former newspapermen turned movie stars aren't unique in Hollywood but they're unusual. Nelson Eddy did a hitch as a reporter and so did Melvyn Douglas and one or two others, but there is no record of any of them cutting a great swath in the field journalistic.

De Cordova, however, was a well-known journalist for a number of years. He was correspondent for a news service in Buenos Aires, Santiago and Rio de Janeiro, and roamed widely through the various South American capitals before giving up the writing trade. As proof that he was a regular newspaperman, he speaks wistfully about getting back into the business but never does anything about it.

But to get back to his movie career:

He worked in some 30 Mexican films after dropping out of the newspaper and radio business seven years ago. He made his first movie here in 1938, a Spanish-language film, and starred in several others, so Hollywood was no stranger to him when he tried out for a role in Paramount's picturization of Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

He won the part of Agustin, the guerilla, and his work was so satisfactory that the studio signed him up for further efforts. He received part of his education in the United States, and speaks English fluently, albeit with a trace of accent.

His newest part is as co-star with Luise Rainer in something called "Hostages," now in production. This film is set in pre-invasion Prague, and de Cordova plays a loyal Czech masquerading as a Nazi spy or a Nazi spy masquerading as a loyal Czech, the studio spokesman being a little vague on the subject. The only scene I saw showed Arturo coming furtively into a little coffee shop, peering darkly into corners, and he could well have been either.

Arturo's present ambition, he says, is to stay in Hollywood, returning to Mexico to make one picture a year.

In Mexico, it seems, they pay you off in pesos but they let you pay your taxes the same way.

LEWIS DEFIES WLB, REFUSES TO ATTEND MEETING

Absence of Leader, Paves Way For Army to Take Over Struck Mines.

procedure, the board can conduct a hearing and make findings and then demand that the operators and the miners accept their ruling.

Lewis' blunt defiance of the board by refusing to attend was expected to pave the way for the use of army troops to take over the mines. It was recalled that in the case of the General Cable Co., in New Jersey, the union involved refused to appear before the board, and army troops were called out to break the strike.

The fifth floor corridor in the labor department building where the WLB has its hearing room was crowded with photographers, reporters, and the curious long before the appointed hour of the hearing on the case of Lewis versus the coal operators.

The UMW chieftain, who already has set the stage for a nationwide coal strike next week in further defiance of the WLB and the White House, frequently has called the war labor board "a packed court." The board met as sporadic strikes began to break out in the coal fields in a prelude to what may be a general walkout in all soft coal mines May 1.

Meanwhile, before President Roosevelt was a full WLB report on the strike at the Celanese corporation's Newark plant involving a jurisdictional dispute by Lewis' union. The president is expected to ask the strikers to return to work and failing that he presumably will direct the army to take over the plant.

Lewis, knowing full well that a wartime strike in the coal fields may send thousands of army troops into action, kept the board on tenter-hooks until the last minute, the mine union "boss," who has branded the WLB a "packed court," did not give any indication in advance whether he would obey or ignore a board edict to attend the hearing.

Even then, Lewis, through adroit mancuvering, shifted the spotlight from the WLB meeting to New York conference he himself will conduct next Tuesday.

The UMW president issued a call for a special meeting of the union's policy committee of 200 rank-and-file members. There was no doubt but what the hard-fisted Lewis would walk out of the conference with a complete vote of confidence and the power to call a strike on May 1, if necessary, to enforce the miners' demand for $2-a-day wage increase or its equivalent.

By merely issuing the call, Lewis minimized the importance of what happens before the WLB in Washington today, tomorrow and Monday. It was reported likely that the WLB, faced with the Tuesday development, would hold a Sunday meeting tomorrow.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins certified the controversy to the WLB Friday, and the board immediately telegraphed northern and southern operators and Lewis to attend the meeting in Washington today. The northern and southern mine owners assented, but the southern group also left part of its forces behind in New York for a Saturday parley with union representatives.

3,500 Miners On Strike In Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(UP)—Between 3,500 and 3,700 coal miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, failed to report for work today in the mines of Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company here as a result of spontaneous resentment over failure of operators to negotiate a new contract and the attitude of the war labor board."

Odd Fellows to Celebrate 100th Birthday Tonight

Mansfield Odd Fellows tonight will look back 100 years to the founding of the lodge here April 7, 1843.

Leaders in the Ohio lodge will be here for the centennial celebration at 7:30 p. m. in the I. O. O. F. hall. The posting of colors and invocation by Rev. C. G. Corwin will open the evening's program. Grand officers, past grand officers and officers of the Mansfield lodge are to be presented.

Frank S. Culp, past grand master and past grand patriarch, will welcome the guests and present the Ohio lodge officers, L. H. Scythe, grand master, Samuel Johnsack, grand patriarch and L. Blanche Boyer, president of the Rebekah assembly, who will speak. Other features of the program will be a piano solo by Helen Malson, a dance by Sandra Lynn Speaker, a comedy sketch by members of the lodge, a tap dance by Gloria Sellers, and songs by Paul Old and Marilyn Joyce Peter. Rev. Grover Swoyer will give the benediction.

The Mansfield Lodge No. 16, the Richland county Lodge No. 191 and the Mohican Encampment No. 7 will take part in the celebration.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in the Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday. It will have for the Golden Text: "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me" (Psalms 49:15).

Included in the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon are correlative passages from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Easter Story To Be Retold Tomorrow In Sermon and In Song

Sunrise Services Start Observances In Most Churches; Choirs Present Cantatas, Other Special Music.

HE IS RISEN! This message which brought joy, hope, courage, and power to the early disciples will be retold from the pulpits of Mansfield churches tomorrow.

Sunrise services will start the Easter observances in most Mansfield churches.

The day will include special music by choirs and cantatas have been planned for presentation before several congregations.

Communion and baptismal services and receptions for new members are also planned, along with the regular services for morning and evening worship.

A highlight of the day will be the annual sunrise service for Mansfield Knights Templar. The Knights will march in uniform to St. John's Evangelical church to attend that church's candle-light service at 6 a. m. They will return to the Masonic temple, North Main street, for their annual Easter breakfast.

Many of tomorrow's sermons will be built around the theme of "Easter's Meaning Today."

A special message prepared by Dr. Henry St. G. Tucker, president of the federal council of Churches of Christ of America, says about this theme as follows:

"The Resurrection of Jesus Christ gives meaning and power to all our other beliefs. It changes a wistful hope of immortality into a sure hope.

"The Easter message brings us more than the assurance of life with Christ after death. It opens up to us the possibility of life with Christ here on earth.

We are engaged in a struggle to preserve the way of life; the principles of freedom, justice and righteousness. Victory in this contest is conditioned upon strenuous effort and unlimited sacrifice. If this sacrifice is limited to the preservation of our heritage for ourselves, we cannot expect God's blessing upon us. The supreme sacrifice will fail to confer full and permanent benefits upon one's own country unless it includes in its aims the welfare of the whole world.

"Easter is a promise of victory for the cause of righteousness in this world. It teaches that the sacrifice of the loyal follower of Christ is not simply a martyr's protest against a wrong which cannot be remedied here on earth. It is rather a guarantee that the sacrifice of love and loyalty is the sure means by which the Victory of the Right can be attained here on earth.

"Christ's final words tie together irrevocably the assurance of power with the responsibility of using it for world-wide betterment: 'Ye shall receive power. . . . Ye shall be witnesses unto me. . . . unto the uttermost part of the earth'."

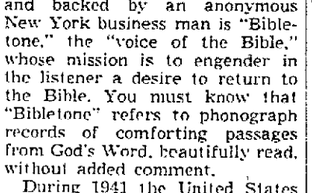
THE MEANING OF EASTER TODAY

Easter has a meaning for the church of today that cannot be obtained by way of science. It has a message for the church that materialistic philosophy cannot proclaim. Easter means the dawn of a new day in which humanity is permitted to touch the power and glory of immortal living. As the thought of immortality occupies our minds, we gain a clearer conception of duty and are inspired to cultivate a Christ-like character. Living for the future is no cowards philosophy, but an inspiration to noble and unselfish activity.

The Easter message proclaims the invisible and indispensable power without which the church cannot radiate and exemplify the meaning of goodwill and provide a saving hope for mankind.

WHY NOT ACCEPT THE INVITATION AND COME TO CHURCH EASTER SUNDAY?

D. Carl Yoder.



The Nazis decreed that by March 31 Bohemia, Moravia and Berlin would be cleared of Jews.

Encouraging information dealing with treatment of Americans held as prisoners of war by the Japanese has been received by the War Prisoners' Aid organization of the Y. M. C. A. Books, athletic equipment and musical instruments have been supplied to seven war prison camps in Japan, Korea, and Formosa.

The pro-Nazi press of Rumania complains that the Rumanian non-Jewish population is showing increased friendliness toward the Jews. Jewish forced laborers, in particular, the Rumanian press complains, are being showered with presents of food, cigarets and clothing, presumably in the hope that these little favors will be remembered when the time of reckoning will come.

A new system of technique of resistance to plague the Quisling puppets in Norway is employed by the Christian churches in the reading from their pulpits of the names of Quisling-appointed ministers. The effect of this is seen in the resignation of these pro-German ministers. To this plan the Quisling-controlled press has launched a new anti-church campaign denouncing loyal pastors as "spiritual bolshevists."

An organization working quietly and backed by an anonymous New York business man is "Bibletone," the "voice of the Bible," whose mission is to engender in the listener a desire to return to the Bible. You must know that "Bibletone" refers to phonograph records of comforting passages from God's Word, beautifully read, without added comment.

During 1941 the United States expended $3,177,000,000 for schools and educational purposes; $4,000,000,000 for alcohol; $3,500,000,000 for dairy products; $1,000,000,000 for motion picture entertainment and $575,000,000 for church and religious purposes, and worst of all $15,000,000,000 for crime costs. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the F. B. I., expresses grave concern over the study of these figures.

Hope is an essential feature in a man's make-up as he faces the problems and complexities of life. When hope is gone, discouragement, pessimism, and despair follow. But a hope that is creative, withstanding all tests undauntedly, must be rooted in God, the Creator, the Preserver, the Father of mankind. The basis for man's hope is in the resurrection of Christ.

Church Attendance.

A prominent physician of a certain church found it impossible to get to church very often. One Easter morning, however, he came to church and brought his little boy.

After church was over, he said to him: "Well, Bill, how did you like it?"

"Fine, Daddy, fine! Let's go again next Easter."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and make sure that you have enough gasoline to get back.

The fact that "every man is entitled to his own opinion" cannot be construed to justify interference with the national war effort.

Liquor store zones are being laid out, preliminary to rationing, and it may be assumed that at least one will be designated as the "temperate zone."

Japan Will Be Much Pleased

MAY FIRST is approached with dread—not over what our valiant fighting forces are doing in Africa and on other battlefronts, nor over the willingness with which millions of earnest workers in war industries are striving to supply the needs of these fighting men, but because of the impediments being placed in the way of these fighters and workers by a small but dangerous minority of men who "strike."

Latest demonstration of this inclination on the part of a few to place self interest above country and to say, in effect, "The war be damned—we're out for more money," is seen in the strike of 2,000 soft coal miners in the Pittsburgh area—cutting off 12,000 tons of coal a day needed by steel mills engaged in war production.

Not many, as compared with the total number of coal miners, but enough to throw a good-sized monkey wrench into the carefully adjusted machinery of war industry and to intensify the threat of a general strike of coal miners May 1, unless John L. Lewis's demands for wage increases are granted.

Certification of the wage dispute to the War Labor Board is claimed to have caused the "unrest" that resulted in the strike, and it may therefore be assumed that action by government, whatever it may be, will be regarded as equally subject to acceptance or rejection by this particular minority.

Possibly it is knowledge of the help that they are being given by strikes and slow-downs in the United States that leads Hitler and Japan's war lords to believe that this country will be a push-over.

They do not know that the determined spirit of millions of loyal Americans will eventually overcome such obstacles as are being placed in the way by John L. Lewis and his type of labor leadership—and that, when there is a more complete awakening, nothing will be permitted to interfere with an all-out war effort.

But every day's delay is costing lives!

No Security Without Policing

SENATOR BURTON and some other senators at Washington believe, in Mr. Burton's words, that after the war "we must join with the other nations to preserve peace, and we should make it clear now that we intend to do so." This raises an issue that will never be settled until it is settled right. And whether there is enough intelligent foresight in this nation today to settle it right is an open question.

The American people, if public polls are representative, seem to know what they want to do. The polls favor some system of international control after the war. Evidently such procedure is regarded by most citizens not as absolute security but as the best way now available to prevent general destruction, and thus offer hope for the future.

As for the senators who oppose such international policing—to be conducted mainly by the big Allied nations now bearing the brunt of the defensive war—it is not clear what kind of policing they expect hereafter, if any. But it is hard to see how practical men can expect the world, any longer, to get along without policing.

It would be well to know what the boys in the army think about it. They might say that garrison duty for a few thousand men is better than periodic slaughter for millions.

Argentina's Aid To the Enemy

ARGENTINA, the only nation in this hemisphere that is co-operating with the Axis, is described by a former American consular agent at Tokyo as "the eyes and ears of the Japanese government in the western hemisphere." He says that more than 60 cables a day are sent to Japan from that country, with full information on American war production.

He also says the Tokyo government has warned the Japanese people that the present war will last 100 years. The Japanese are naturally inclined to deal in large numbers, and have a rather dim sense of time, but this estimate seems excessive. Americans are not doing any boasting, but will be much surprised if the Japs hold out for more than five years.

Curfew as Delinquency Curb

SOME CITIES—including several large ones—are adopting curfew laws. Their purpose is to get children off the streets and into their homes at 9 p. m. What they do from then on is their own business, and their parents'.

The younger ones, in sensible homes, will probably go to bed, and the older ones may sit around for an hour, studying lessons, getting acquainted with the family, playing games, or maybe reading the paper. Growth in juvenile delinquency accounts for increasing approval of an idea that a reasonable degree of parental supervision is advantageous.

Blanket-Extender Suggestion

THE OPA has decreed that hereafter no new blankets may be woven wider than six feet or longer than seven. That's a normal size for blankets, and does for most beds. It's only the very tall people who will be inconvenienced.

An expert housewife to whom this problem was referred says solution is easy. She suggests taking a strip of cotton cloth about half a yard wide and stitching it across the bottom of the blanket. That part tucks under the mattress, leaving the whole blanket to cover the sleeping form.

By permission of WPB, more can openers are to be manufactured—and let's hope they'll be of a sort that will open a can without throwing too great a burden on accident insurance companies.

Revived for the occasion: "Mary had a little lamb, with green peas on the side, and when the waiter brought the bill, poor Mary nearly died."

What matter whether or not the shoe fits—if you have no No. 17 coupon?

Plans to Punish Axis Criminals Should Be Formalized By Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AS WE MAKE OUR VOWS to punish the Japanese (and the Axis powers as well) for their barbaric atrocities, the question arises whether it wouldn't be a good idea to formalize the general program and announce it forthwith as a joint United Nations determination.

If, for example, we could agree that all atrocities would be dealt with summarily at the end of the war by courts martial established by the armies of occupation, it might have a restraining influence on the enemy. There's a speed and finality about courts martial which the militaristic mind can appreciate, whereas a civil international court would hold few terrors.

One is impelled to this thought by remembrance that the Allied cry in the last war to "hang the kaiser" and others for their "war guilt" finally petered out when it came to a show-down. David Lloyd George, Britain's famous war-time prime minister, was one of the leading exponents of this project, and he even headed a victorious election campaign which featured this issue.

WHEN the peace conference assembled in Paris in January of 1919 it immediately appointed a committe on war responsibility, and this body recommended that the kaiser be tried before a tribunal made up of representatives of the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Japan. There also was a blacklist of 900 other German leaders and commanders, headed by little Willie, the crown prince.

Well, there were 22 countries entitled to join in demanding extradition of the kaiser from Holland, and their sentiment became divided. Many Germans, including the crown prince and Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, volunteered to stand trial for the all highest.

The ex-emperor's sons appealed to King George of England to save his relative. The king was said to have remarked that he thought Wilhelm had been "well punished" already. The kaiser was reported to have threatened suicide, but he denied this in his memoirs.

Amid such an atmosphere of hemming and hawing, the Allies made two demands on Holland for extradition of the emperor. Both were rejected, and the grandiose plan died.

There's no need for anything of that sort to happen in this war. The Allied program, so far as has been indicated, contemplates military occupation of the enemy countries after unconditional surrender. It will be a long time before there can be a peace conference. Meantime military law presumably will prevail.

THE MOST expeditious way to dispose of murder atrocities and that sort of thing will be through the courts martial. The armies will have the facilities to round up witnesses while the atrocities are fresh in mind.

Even such lofty criminals as Japanese Premier Tojo and Herr Hitler with his gang can be dealt with perfectly well by the military courts. There's no need to go through all the rigmarole of setting up an Allied tribunal with loud-speakers and motion-picture machines for the trials.

The war has reached a stage where the Axis is badly worried, and the Japs know that they stand or fall with Hitler. This means our enemy is at the point where desperation may produce even worse atrocities than we have seen thus far.

The Japanese barbarians have insolently promised a "special pass to hell" for any further American airmen who bomb Japan—in other words, more executions. The British government announces it had received reports Hitler was preparing to use poison gas on the Russian front, and the Reds say supplies of gas already have reached the Nazi forces. The Boche deny intention of using gas, but they lie as easily as they massacre defenseless civilians.

Advance notice of establishment of courts martial to handle atrocity cases sumarily might have a salutary effect at this critical juncture.

Spring Miracles

THERE used to be a stretch of old, brick walk along my way to school. I wasn't then much more than three bricks deep myself. But that walk held a curious magic, 'specially in Spring.

I loved them most, those bricks, when the first rains arrived—which, out in California, may be anywhere from Fall to March. Rains are such special treats for those who have no summer showers. They always found our garden deep in withered weeds, each gray chink packed with dust, dry pods and seeds, baked hard by trampling suns. For months the walk had waited, desolate, forlorn . . . its border tangled thick with lilac sprouts, thistles and lilies, myrtle, mustard bloom.

Then, sometime between midnight and the dawn, the rain would start. You'd hear it, feel it, gushing, pattering along the roof. It had a different, green and dancing smell. You listened as it worked its happy, hopeful way between the shingles, deep into your heart. And all the summer fragrance would come alive again . . . and all the fairy tales. And all the secret doors that opened to your heart.

At first there'd be only a web of grass like emerald gauze between the rocks and roots. But with the rain, a Miracle had come! Each crack between the bricks was spurting shining tufts. Last week you would have wagered nothing less than dynamite could make them stir. But now, April's magic is at work! You see it moving as yeast moves through dough.

The warm soil smelled and smoked. The bird song shot like golden threads through pine and oak. The new air was afoam with some mysterious force which swayed and quivered in the mystery of Birth. And, squatting in that dear, familiar mud, I made a song.

I can't remember what I said in that young song. I only know it was packed through with joy. A nest of birds above me, bulged and bubbled with gay chirps. The sunlight lay like splattered gold along the trail. The warty toad was there beside the pool! But, best of all, there were those grass rimmed bricks . . . the moving hummocks of the waking earth.

WHAT MADE EARTH MOVE LIKE THAT? HOW COULD SOME FORCE WITHIN IT TUG AND BREAK UNTIL YOUR EAGER HEART WITHIN HAD COME AWAKE?

I didn't know the answer then or now. But, with each Spring, a little understanding grows.

It's not just an
The old, red brick
Or on the calendar,
That urge
It's something in the heart
Which makes us start
And reach and weave
To free ourselves
From our old ruts -
It's at the base
Of this whole business
We call Life—
The flame which we've named
God —
The hunger which is Faith!
The lovely wonder
Which brings Easter
To the earth.

A blade of grass, pushing a pebble from its bedded clay. A dream, which lifts a man or woman from the niche that's grown too narrow for their thrusting selves. A flash of pride . . . that gives us strength to take life in our stride.

SPRING MIRACLES! THEY COME, EACH YEAR, TO THAT OLD STRIP OF BRICK WHICH ONCE I KNEW. THEY CAN AS SURELY COME TO YOU AND BREAK Y-O-U-R CELL.

Air Superiority Attained By Allies Important Factor In North Africa

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

AIR SUPERIORITY that the Allies did not have at the outset of the North African battle prevented a quick conquest of the Bizerte-Tunis key sector and forced a weeks-long stalemate along the west-central line.

The air superiority that the Allies have now, and which, perhaps more than any other factor, may decide the Tunisian issue, began with the battle of the Mareth Line. But it had been foreshadowed weeks before, with the arrival in Africa of Lieut. Gen. Carl H. Spaatz, to take over Allied air operations.

No Restrictions.

Last week, in the words of Gen. Spaatz, the Allied air force was able to "roam freely over Tunisia, Sicily, Sardinia and Italy." By midweek it had registered the most spectacular air victory of the African campaign—the destruction in 48 hours of more than 100 Axis planes in the escape lane between the tip of Tunis and the island of Sicily.

As word of the mounting air successes came in from the fighting fronts, it became more evident that the battle for Tunisia was entering its final phase. General B. L. Montgomery's powerful Eighth Army was on the move again; putting down the usual artillery barrage, the Eighth smashed through German defenses at Enfidaville, rolled on toward a show-down in Tunis.

Of the dozens of Axis aircraft sent plunging onto the beaches or into the water, more than three score were giant Junkers 52 transports—the ships that carried German troops into brilliantly victorious campaigns in better days.

Escape by Air.

These transports were headed away from the campaign, toward the temporary safety of Italian ports, but it still was too early to say whether the Germans were attempting an evacuation. If so, the Allies had pointed up sharply the job ahead.

In his discussion of operations, Spaatz apparently put the crusher on Axis hopes in North Africa. Since March 20, he disclosed, the Allies had shot down 519 Axis planes against a loss of 175, had destroyed nearly 1,000 other enemy planes on the ground.

Navy Ready.

If the German master-minds decided to attempt an evacuation of troops by sea, they faced the one-two-punch of the Allied air force and the British navy. Asserted Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Cunningham:

"I can safely say that, assisted by the American air force and the RAF, the Royal navy is ready to take care of any enemy Dunkerque from Africa."

At Home

Now, Steady Work.

It was the week of the big freeze, for a majority of the nation's 52,000,000 workers awakened last Sunday to discover that the war had put drastic, unprecedented restrictions on their peacetime right to take another job.

The play was Roosevelt to McNutt, and it aimed at two things: (1) to assist in the fight to control inflation by eliminating the competitive hiring of workers; (2) to prevent a turnover of essential workers in essential industries.

Briefly Manpower Boss McNutt told workers they could not go from essential work to non-essential work, or from one essential industry to another at a higher rate of pay. Unaffected were those in non-essential work; they were permitted to go into work of similar classification, or into essential work, without restrictions.

For violations, the WMC promised fines of $1,000, prison terms of a year—for either employer or employe. As to the American tradition that every man has a right to better himself in another job, McNutt had a one-sentence answer:

"We've got a war on."

Good Neighbors.

Until Franklin Roosevelt turned up in Monterrey, Mexico, during the week to deliver a joint address with President Avila Camacho, there had been no meeting of chief executives of the two countries since Presidents Taft and Diaz dedicated a bridge over the Rio Grande river in 1909.

Fiery little Mexico jumped into the war against the Axis months ago, and from that time relations with the U. S. improved steadily, and the solidarity apparently was cinched by President Roosevelt's visit, the climax of a long tour through Army camps in the south and southwest.

For World Cops: 24.

The question "What follows unconditional surrender?" remained a subject of great interest in official Washington.

Toward a determination of sentiment in the senate—where peace treaties must be finally approved—The Associated Press asked an answer to this one:

"Do you favor committing the senate and country now to a post-war course of preserving the peace through an international police force?"

Thirty-two senators said no, and their replies included varying reasons up to the one by Ohio's Taft, a Republican, that it would be "as easy for an international police force to bomb New York as Berlin."

Twenty-four said yes, the most emphatic being Democrat Lucas of Illinois, who favors dismantling Axis factories after the war, embargoing munitions-making materials.

Of the remaining 32 senators, 24 have not reached a decision, eight were unavailable when the survey was made.

Batter Up!

With the president in Mexico and the vice-president in South America, Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, who once twirled for Indiana University, stepped in as a relief pitcher, tossed out the first ball at Griffith Stadium in Washington.

Then, 25,000 customers (smallest Washington opening day crowd in many years) watched the Washington Senators go on from there to beat the Philadelphia Athletics 7 to 5, inaugurating the 1943 major league season.

Abroad

Peace Feeler.

Count Francisco Gomez Jordana stepped into the Spanish foreign minister's job last fall to the considerable satisfaction of the Allies and their neutral sympathizers. Serrano Suner, whom Gomez Jordana succeeded, had been a red-hot Axis supporter.

Jordana naturally was not advertised as anti-Fascist, but he was an old Army man, a long-time diplomat, and there was no indication that he had gone overboard for the principles of Adolf Hitler's new order.

But a few days ago Jordana took over a new role, spearheaded a drive for a negotiated peace in Europe. Said he, to a gathering of South American and Portuguese diplomats, there is no chance for the complete victory or the complete annihilation of either side, therefore, let peace come "before the war is prolonged longer than necessary."

From Washington came an immediate reaction: The United States' objective is the absolute, unconditional surrender of the Axis.

Prelude to Invasion.

Beer and the Skoda munitions works make Pilsen, Czecho-Slovakia's industrial giant, famous. The RAF made the city notable as well for the pasting more than 600 heavy bombers gave the scattered buildings where 55,000 workers produce tanks, heavy artillery, armored cars, plane parts and engines and shells for the Axis.

This record bombing raid—a 1,400-mile round trip into a part of Hitler's empire once believed to be too remote for such attacks—helped set another record. Fifty-five bombers were lost that night, 37 in the Pilsen raid and 18 on the shorter run in simultaneous raids on Mannheim and Ludwigshaven on the Rhine.

The next day American four-engined bombers smashed Bremen, home of Germany's dangerous Focke-Wulf fighter planes, suffered another record loss of 16 ships while shooting down more than 50 enemy planes in the 800-miles round trip.

Quotes

Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce: "I think our standard of living will be improved in the postwar era. New things will be built and devised for the comfort and enjoyment of the people."

Donald M. Nelson, war production chief: "Certainly, a year ago, if anybody could have told us we could build 7,000 airplanes in one month, we wouldn't know what they were talking about. But we will do it, probably this month."

In Short

Ordered: For navy officers, a new summer uniform, slate gray in color to replace old style khaki, blend with camoflage colors of ships.

Disclosed: In England, where he is a gunnery instructor, the promotion of Clark Gable from first lieutenant to captain.

Drowned: Ten New York Sea Scouts, when their converted, obsolete submarine chaser capsized near Islip, N. Y.

Signed: By Germany and Turkey, a new commercial agreement for the exchange of goods equivalent to $30,000,000 each in the next year.

Introduced: In the Missouri house of representatives, a bill that would bar all motion pictures in which any actor who has been divorced appears, also all films portraying or implying divorce.

Scheduled: For sentencing May 10 in San Francisco, Bandleader Gene Krupa, after pleading guilty to charges of contributing to the delinquency of his 20-year-old valet, on whose person narcotic cigarets were found.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If there has been any greater wartime confusion than in Selective Service, I don't know where it is.

The new "rules and regulations" issued a few days ago sounded drastic. The overwhelming majority (143-to-7) by which the Kilday bill, delaying the induction of fathers, passed the House indicated a radical change in induction policies.

Some classifications have been abolished and new ones set up. But what it boils down to is simply what has been known for months, and actually no serious change in the induction schedules is contemplated.

The fact that married men, with dependents, may now be reclassified, as 1-A's; that Class 3-B (married men in "essential industries") is to be abolished; that there will be a special classification for farmers and "essential" farm workers; that there will be a reclassification of the 4-H's (men 38 to 45) to see what uses they might be put to in the armed forces or industry, means very little.

In sum and substance, dependency is no longer grounds for automatic deferment; but actually, married men with children in the home, and men whose induction would cause real hardship to dependents, will be the last to be called. That is not different from the program previously followed.

PRIMARILY, the armed forces want single men, from 18 to 37, who are not essential to industry or agriculture. Their last wish is to disrupt the American home, but they are not blind to the fact that some men marry and have children merely to escape the draft. To ignore this would be an injustice to those millions who are willing to serve.

Secondly, the military powers that be want the armed forces built up to around ten or eleven million men. At present there is no indication that it will be less than that. To maintain an army of that size, and supply it and our allies, requires millions more in industry, sea and land transportation, and on the farms.

SELECTIVE Service was planned originally as a means of getting the available men into the armed services. It has become apparent that Selective Service now has a greater problem. It has got to (1) provide, by exemption, essential war industry and farm workers; (2) preserve so far as is possible American family life; (3) avoid complete disruption of civilian industry, morale and economics; (4) employ to best advantage the conscientious objectors.

In spite of its confusions, errors and even isolated indiocies, observers here will tell you that Selective Service has been driving in that direction from the first. The only real changes are those which have been made by law (change of age limits, etc.). The newest classifications are just a rewriting of the catechism which they hope will get draft boards a little forwarder in the same old way.

The Flags Go Home.

The scars of the destructive fratricidal conflict that was the Civil war have taken long years to heal. The issues over which the nation split have slipped into history and today only vestiges of resentment remain as a bitter memory of a terrible hour in this country's history.

It is too much to hope that even 80 years could erase the emotions that flared on a hundred battlegrounds. But it is never too late to make stronger the bonds of friendship and unified purpose that make us the strong nation we are. Especially when our national existence is challenged, do acts of goodwill between the North and the South take on added importance.

In this spirit, the State of Wisconsin is returning six of the 13 battle flags which Badger State troops captured during the Civil War. The other seven are too tattered for definite identification.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

By Oren Arnold

CHAPTER XXI

When the young English sergeant extended a receipt form, Rosemary read it in a kind of daze. A caravan of 150 men coming in three hours! And nothing ready. This in all truth would mean the end of Bill St. Clair's career. She signed the paper, acknowledging custody of the $22,000.

"Shall we now carry it to your vault?" Sergeant Wayne inquired.

"Oh. Yes. I'll get Uncle Pete."

The seven English lads were keenly interested as old Peter Quincy led them to the hotel vault that had been constructed 50-odd years ago. He inserted a key and creaked open the door. Their exclamations of surprise and exhuberance could have been amusing. Rosemary scarcely heard the long, wierd creaking, or the young men either.

"You want it kept safe," Uncle Pete stated.

"Yes, by all means." Rosemary nodded. "And I want somebody to go at once for Bill St. Clair!"

"Right, miss." Sergeant Wayne saluted. "Motorcycles waiting."

"Oh." She wasn't used to this. But she sent the messenger, pointing out the way. Then Uncle Pete came to her with the key to the vault.

* * *

The motorcycle was back with Bill in scarcely 20 minutes. He got out of the side car and walked straight to Rosemary.

"The driver told me nothing," he began, "except that you sent for me. What's happened?"

"Everything, Bill. The project has crashed!"

"Go on, please."

"I—I hate to tell you so. You've been so grand about it all, and you had such fond hopes. And back at Washington they trusted you!"

"Must you tell me that now, Rosemary? What is it? Has Washington kicked us out? They should have."

"Oh no! It—it's just the opposite of that. They—the army has assumed that we are ready to begin. They've sent men here to start training, Bill. English cadets, to learn flying. Here at Lightning Field!"

"I see." He remained calm.

"Don't you understand? They're here!"

"These—seven?"

"They are only the couriers. They came on ahead with the orders and the money."

"Money?"

She told him about the $22,000. even gave him the vault key. He took it, rather absently. Despair was beginning to show on him.

"Then there'll be others coming," he said.

"In three hours," she nodded. "About 150, didn't you say, Sergeant Wayne?"

"Yes, Miss Lee."

"Bill, that telegram—Colonel Allen evidently meant it when he said he wanted you to be ahead of schedule here. When he said they would send the first trainees soon."

"He meant it," Bill agreed. "He understands how urgent this whole air program is. So do I."

They were silent, then, for a long moment. Bill moved to the hotel steps, sat down and took off his hat. He mopped field dust from his forehead. His lips had that strained, taut look which proclaimed his anguish, his thinking, his searching for the right course of action.

Sergeant Wayne spoke then. "If there is anything that we can do, but I'm afraid I don't understand exactly what you and Miss Lee refer to, sir."

"No, sergeant. It—it's all kind of mixed up. Somewhat personal, in fact." Bill sighed, as a tired man would. "All of the war, sergeant, any war, I suppose, is not fought on the battlefield. I mean, the civilian workers have their problems, too. Their tactical moves. Their campaigns. We deal a little less with force, more with —human emotions."

"Right, sir."

"It's possible to commandeer certain, uh, needed services, for instance. Another form of the draft. But public morale has to be considered. Simple, kindly, peace-loving people have to be made to understand. The very strength of America depends on that!"

"Oh Bill!" Rosemary cried, softly.

"Sergeant, there isn't any Lightning Field. Miss Lee and I have been here for about three weeks. Time enough, normally, to have done things. But—"

"If I may put in, sir—we were told not to expect actual flight experience for several more days. It was to be preliminary skull work at first. You follow me, sir?"

"Certainly. But even that takes housing, Wayne. The first landing field can be ready in four or five more days—look down there at the work now." Bill pointed. "But do you see any dormitories? Classrooms? Laboratories? Hospital? Any structure at all? No, you don't. And that's the bitter part of it. Those things came first and they were my responsibility. I failed!"

"Bill, please!"

He stood up now, dusting his hat against his knee. He ignored Rosemary's heartbroken plea and talked on. "You come with orders for me to be your commandant for two days until your official staff arrives. What have I to offer you? Nothing! Nothing but wasted time!"

"You say, sir, that you have been blocked by local people?" Sergeant Wayne asked.

"Partly. They sold all available building materials to an individual. A war profiteer. A—a crook!" Bill glanced at Rosemary as if begging her pardon for that.

"Then, sir, why don't you bring him to task? Can't you?"

Bill's lips were softer now, and his eyes held infinite tenderness though he looked far away.

"Wayne," he spoke quietly, bitterness gone, "I—I'm afraid that's where the personal slant comes in. It would be hard for an army man to understand. Hard for me to understand myself, in fact. But if I tore into that man and exposed him, it would bring public shame and misery to—"

He broke off. Silence gripped all of them. Then Bill started toward his car. Presently he drove off toward Option again.

Rosemary alone had understood him. All these weeks Bill St. Clair had wanted more than anything else to protect her!

SQUARE OF TAR PAPER PROTECTS AGAINST FLIES OF CABBAGE ROOT MAGGOT
PAPER COLLAR PROTECTION AGAINST CUTWORM
HOW CUT WORM ATTACKS UNPROTECTED PLANT

Protecting Young Plants In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Young plants in the Victory garden will need protection against enemy pests which try to blitzkrieg them.

the cabbage maggot, for example, invades the stems of early-set cabbage and cauliflower plants as well as early turnips. The maggots are white worms one-fourth to one-half inch long, which feed upon the stems of the plants just below the surface of the soil. This attack causes the plants to wilt and die. The maggots hatch from eggs laid on the soil by slender, gray flies of which there are three broods a year.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, placing a square of tarred paper around the stems of each plant when setting the plants out will protect against the invasion of root maggots, as the odor of the tarred paper will keep the flies away.

Cutworms are also a menace to young plants in the Victory garden. When they attack they chew through the stem of young plants just at the surface of the soil or slightly below the surface. Cutworms are brownish gray grubs about one inch long and are frequently found one inch below the surface of the soil coiled around the roots of a young plant.

One method of warding off the attacks of the cutworm is to place paper or cardboard collars around the young plants as illustrated. Seedling plants grown in paper cups can be set out without removing this protective collar. Merely cut off the bottom of the paper cup before setting the plant out, cup and all. Allow the sides of the paper container to extend about one inch above the surface of the soil.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

Problems of Personal Finance Solved By Mansfield Provident

Local Company Serves Vital Community Need.

The Mansfield Provident company was founded during World war I to serve the personal loan needs of this community. Today, 27 years later, the company is continuing to play a vital part in the economic life of the community.

During these many years the organization has witnessed many changes in business and the personal life of the city but always it has kept abreast of the hour and has adapted its policies to current and future needs.

The Mansfield Provident company has constantly adhered to certain fundamental business truths and firmly believes that "confidence is the cornerstone of good business."

H. E. Amsbaugh, general manager of the local branch of the company located at 18 West Third street, points out that personal loans to individuals for worthwhile purposes is strictly the business of the Mansfield Provident company.

Continuing, he says, "we firmly believe that personal economic stability is vital to the national welfare and we are devoted to the assistance of our clients to align personal budgets and eliminate freedom from personal financial worries."

War Bond purchases to the limit are being encouraged in this all-out war effort. The company is proud of its five members now in the armed services.

A few of the current reasons for personal borrowing as outlined by Amsbaugh are as follows: Debt consolidation, hospitalization and medical needs, civilian morale improvement, consumer goods purchases.

For many years the organization has made grants to employed women and now with more women engaged in industry, this policy is even more popular than before.

Branch offices in Ashland and Shelby are maintained to assist with similar problems of personal finance in those localities.

The offices of the Mansfield Provident company, located at 18 West Third street, are shown in the accompanying photo.

HOUSEWIVES TO STUDY METHODS OF PROCESSING

Five Streamlined Systems of Food Preservation To Be Discussed.

The subject, "Spring Canning"—more important now than ever before—will be discussed Thursday, April 29 at 2 p. m. by Mrs. Pauline Oberlin, home economist of the Ohio Public Service company, at the Health for Victory meeting to be held in the OPS rooms, corner of Third and Diamond.

With food rationing making it necessary for housewives to plan now for next winter's meals, Mrs. Oberlin will describe five ways to preserve food: dehydrating, quick freezing, brining, canning and storing foods in cellars and pits.

The main part of her talk, however, will deal with the preparation of food for quick freezing and four principal ways to can foods, including pressure cooker, oven or roaster, water bath and open kettle methods.

Discussing the coming meeting, Mrs. Oberlin today said, "Many women who never canned foods will give a slight shudder at the idea, remembering the childhood days when they saw a boiler on the stove filled with bubbling tomatoes.

"But canning today is different; it's streamlined. The pressure cooker, electric oven and roaster methods eliminate the mess that used to go with canning."

Some women who never did any canning, Mrs. Oberlin pointed out, probably will fear their lack of previous experience will make it difficult to preserve foods in such a way that there will be no spoiling.

"If certain fundamental rules are followed, canning will be completely successful," the home economist explained. "The first rule is always use good quality, fresh, clean fruits and vegetables. Blanch all vegetables in a steam bath is the second requirement. Other 'musts' are to sterilize all containers and use the proper equipment."

OLIVER HECKLER TAKEN BY DEATH

CRESTLINE—Oliver Heckler, 84, of west of Crestline, died at Emergency hospital Friday afternoon of apoplexy.

He is survived by two grandchildren, Mrs. Catherine Eckstein of west of Crestline and Miss Mary Ellen Heckler who with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Heckler resided at the home; a sister, Miss Mary Heckler and a brother, Adam of Crestline.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Garverick funeral home, Rev. C. H. Lange, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church will officiate. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

Firestone Lauds Qualities of New Plastic Screen

If Firestone's new Velon plastic window screen is a forerunner of other developments that are expected to arise from the exigencies of wartime restriction of the use of critical materials, the postwar world has much to look forward to, according to W. W. Hermann, manager of the local Firestone store located at 16 South Mulberry street.

"For years," Hermann said, "we had always considered copper screens the best that money could buy, but it is now considered that Velon plastic screens have so many advantages that it is questionable if copper or other metal wire will ever again be regarded as an essential material in the screen manufacturing business."

Probably most outstanding among the long list of features of superiority of Velon over conventional screens is the fact that it does not deteriorate or corrode.

Since there is no rusting or oxidation of any kind, there is no possibliity of stain running down the house walls and thereby creating the unsightly appearance that usually results from the use of screen made of metal wire.

Being transluscent, Velon screens admit more light. Dirt may be washed from Velon with a damp cloth or brush to restore original luster. Heat and cold do not affect it.

Velon is strong, flexible and highly resistant to impact.

Velon is being used in the production of various other commodities including upholstery and seat fabrics and draperies. It is also molded into flexible tubing to replace metal tubing. It is expected that its field of application will expand rapidly as the demand requires.

MANSFIELD SOROSIS.

Mansfield Sorosis will meet Tuesday, April 27 at 7:45 at the home of Mrs. William R. King, 395 Edgewood road.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 25.

Sunday's horoscope encourages all those having lofty ambitions or those hoping to find high favor in the good graces of superiors, employers or elders. It should be a time for seeking promotion or other forms of appreciation, especially for the clergy or ecclesiastics or those in responsible positions wishing to go further in public service. Social and affectional affairs should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may look and work for a year of advancement, favors and other tokens of appreciation and favor from those in high places.

A child born on this day should have fine creative and constructive ability to justify its ambition for high place and power. It should also be personally gracious, popular and favored by luck.

For Monday, April 26.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a very lively state of affairs, particularly in connection with large and important organizations. However, there may be trivial obstacles or petty friction to be composed with finesse and good grace. Unique matters may intrigue. In all relations shun extravagance and excesses.

Those whose birthday it is may derive great advantage by clever, novel or subtle measures, but be tactful with elders, avoid conflicts or petty friction. Also be conservative with funds and other resources.

New Play Suit

Dad's shirt made this enchanting sunsuit and sunbonnet. Mom learned how to make it at a local sewing center, where wartime make-over is taught.

WILLING WORKERS.

The Willing Workers of Little Washington church held an all day meeting recently. Quilting was done during the afternoon The group will hold a covered dish dinner on April 29.

Bible Club Has Friday Meeting With Mrs. Wallace

Members of the Gleaners' Bible club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Wallace, 498 Bowman street, with two guests, Rev. Lena Brandenburg and Mrs. Roy Duffy, present.

For devotions Mrs. Wallace read an Easter poem. The lesson study on the twenty-fourth chapter of Luke was conducted by Mrs. E. C. Crider, who also sang "The Old Rugged Cross." Mrs. C. A. Cole, president, presided over the business meeting.

The next meeting is scheduled for May 14 with the place to be announced later.

ESTHER BIBLE CLUB.

Mrs. Esther Etzwiler, Park avenue east, entertained members of the Esther Bible club recently at her home, when Mrs. Fred Griebling, Mrs. James Purdy, Mrs. William McGinty and Mrs. Emma Fisher were welcomed into the club Devotions were led by Mrs. C. H. Cruitt Mrs. C. I. Loos and Mrs. John Miller gave the lesson study in Luke. The next meeting will be held May 13 at the home of Mrs. G. H Cruitt, 14 South Adams.

SEED SAVER

Make your seeds come true! The Department of Agriculture recommends that Victory gardeners treat seeds before planting with an organic mercury dust disinfectant. Market gardeners have long used this simple technique as a protection of seeds against rot in the soil. The disinfectant is now available in garden-size packets and is used by dropping a tiny quantity into each package of seed and shaking vigorously.

THEATERS

Norwegian Revolt.

Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan are starred in "Edge of Darkness," Warner Brothers new picture which starts today at the Ohio. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Jack was so disturbed at my bursting in upon him that his usual iron nerve appeared to have deserted him, and his hand trembled as he held it out for my father's message.

He kept his eyes averted from mine, but something in his manner gave me the impression that it was not anger at my intrusion which moved him. Was it possible that subconsciously he had been wishing his self-imposed barrier might broken, and that Katharine might come to him in forgiving reunion?

But even so, I knew his fear for Katharine's safety would spur him to battle against her coming to the hideaway This was confirmed when at last he looked at me with eyes stony in their obstinacy.

Appeals to Jack.

"Your father requests that I do as you ask," he said. "Of course I know the request you are bringing, but that can wait. First, I want to know how you found out I was here"

"I did not know for a long time," I said 'Father told me you had left the hideaway but not that you had returned and the tortures of the damned are nothing to the suffering to which your silence has condemned Katharine."

His face was suddenly contorted with pain, but his eyes still were adamant

"I am truly sorry," he said, 'but better that than for me to put her in deadly peril by letting her join me But how did you find out about my return?'

'I got a glimpse of you through a door accidently left ajar the last time I was at the hideaway,' I told him "but I did not tell my father until after I had begged him to tell Katharine your whereabouts. He agreed, and she now knows you are here, but my father says you alone must decide about her coming down to see you. He is willing to have her come, but you are the one most deeply concerned. However, he asked me to read the note he had written to you, so I know he has advised you to grant Katharine's plea."

"I wish I could," Jack exclaimed, his voice raucous with torture, "but I don't dare let her come down here"

"Jack," I said slowly, knowing how Katharine was depending on me, "do you realize what you are doing to Katharine by this determination not to see her? She knows you are in New York and that only your own dictum is keeping her from you. And she can interpret that in only one way—that you would let that wilderness woman share your dangers, but will not permit your wife to come to your aid"

Jack's Pride Stung.

If I had not known Jack so well I would have shrunk back in terror at the look on his face He straightened as if pricked with a stiletto and I believe that never in his life had he felt so strong an impulse to strike a woman.

"What do you mean by that speech?" he demanded hoarsely

"Exactly what I said," I retorted "Katharine knows that all through the years that wilderness woman has shared your work and your hardships'

"Not mine," Jack declared flatly, and there was the ring of truth in his voice. "She came out there originally on account of her brother. She is devoted to him—"

"And stayed on account of you" I told him, with an edge in my voice

"The Authority on Authorities"

PRACTICE DECEPTION

You cannot count yourself as a consummate master of 'dummy play"—an expression used by many veterans to describe the declarer's work—until you have learned to practice deception at every logical opportunity. Such apparently insignificant things as care in choosing a card from several in sequence can determine the result you get sometimes in a most surprising way. It can pay a defender to waste a high card or hold one up if it makes him misread your own holdings and therefore that of his partner.

	♠ K Q ♥ A J 8 2 ♦ K 7 5 4 3 ♣ 9 7

Different methods produced that same contract at several duplicate tables, each bringing a lead of the club 5 to the Q though that lead away from a K is highly criticizable against a small slam Everybody made his contract, but only one declarer scored an extra trick. When the scores were unspected nobody could understand now that cnap kept West from winning a trick with his diamond A But it was quite simple

After taking the first trick with the club Q he immediately led the diamond J Notice carefully – not the Q the J Now, if you were West would you be sure the A was your best play? You would have some doubt about it that early wouldn't you feeling that maybe your partner might have the Q and that your side's only chance to beat the contract might be for you to duck and have South get the J go through? That is just what this poor chap in the West thought. So he ducked and the J won.

Followed then the spade K and Q heart K, spade A, S and 6, heart Q, A and then the J. As the card was led to the eleventh trick, the dummy also held the diamond K and the club 9. This diamond Q was discarded from South leaving him the club A-J. Now what could poor West do, with his club K-10 and diamond A? He was squeezed To hold the diamond A, he had to ditch his club guard Then the club A dropped the K and the J took the final trick

Your Week-End Lesson.

What three changes in scoring are found in the new Laws of Contract Bridge? All three of them involve items of 50 points, two of these being additional points to be scored now but which were not scored under the previous Laws and one of them being the removal of a way whereby 50 points was provided previously.

There'll be very little kegling this Easter week-end in the Inter-City tournament at Colony alleys, and most of that will be by Mansfield maple mashers.

No action is scheduled on the lanes this evening, and tomorrow's schedule will not get under way until 1 p. m.

When the Inter-City association decided to lengthen its schedule one week to eliminate Easter travel by visiting teams, it also ruled that Mansfielders scheduled to roll this week-end could not postpone their lines until the extra date.

There will be only a few outside teams appearing here tomorrow.

* * *

Fans who saw Todd Morrell, operator of the Warren Bowling Center, take the lead in Inter-City all-events last week-end with a game average of 218, probably would have gotten a bigger kick out of it if they had known Morrell had been laid up for three weeks with a lame back.

Jim Weems believes that's just the reason Morrell is leading the parade today.

Says Jim: "I don't know what was the matter with him, but I saw that he was taking it easy, just laying the ball over the line, and on those fast alleys his ball was taking its stuff while the others were running."

It isn't true that it takes a lame brain to be a good bowler. A lame back is the answer.

The Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce bowling tournament, scheduled May 1 and 2 at Colony alleys, may run into serious difficulty unless quick action is taken and the joust is given the sanction of the American Bowling Congress.

Says Al Vogel, Colony manager: "I can't afford to get in Dutch with the ABC and the Mansfield Bowling associat n by permitting an unsanct oned tournament on these alleys, and as far as I know the tourney has not yet been sanctioned. And I must have a list of entries in order to schedule the tourney along with the Inter-City."

This sad news is passed on to the JAC as a gentle reminder to get busy, not as calamity howling.

* * *

Vogel has been checking with Inter-City bowlers on their reaction to a repeat booking of last spring's Colony singles and doubles tournament, and their response has encouraged him to schedule the tourney for May 8-9 and 15-16.

Entry blanks have been distributed over the state, and Al happily reports that early entry of six hot-shot Cleveland keglers.

"I booked last year's tournament as the FIRST ANNUAL," says Al, "and I want to keep it that way."

Ideal Electrics Roll 2-1 Matches

Every match in the Ideal Electric bowling league last night was decided on the 2-1 plan.

Crawford paced the league with a 504 series and high game of 179.

PLAY 21 INNINGS

BALTIMORE, Md. —(U.P.)— The International league laid claim to the fledgling baseball season's longest game today after the Baltimore Orioles and the Toronto Maple Leafs struggled through 21 innings to a 2-2 deadlock. The game was called at the end of the 21st because of darkness.

Players Promised New Ball

Another Shutout Goes Into Season Records.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

JUST a few hours before Easter the major league baseball players learned they would have a rabbit ball this season, after all.

The announcement that the official ball would be revitalized came yesterday before the Philadelphia Athletics blanked the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 0—the success by the lowly A's with the Gibraltar pellet surprising even the manufacturers but not influencing their decision.

The game, the only contest on the abbreviated Good Friday schedule, resulted in the eighth shutout in the 12 games played this spring. During that time there has been only one home run, in contrast to the six on opening day of 1942.

Lou Coleman, vice president of A. G. Spalding and Bros., said the present ball was dead because of the cement used to bind together the various layers of wool yarn and balata, wartime substitute for rubber.

The balata center is OK, he said, but the cement became hard when it dried, making the ball as solid as a bride's first cake.

A new cement has been perfected and a pellet which will resemble the 1942 ball in agility will be ready in two weeks.

Despite grumblings and protest from various players it was a home-made experiment by Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds and a member of the committee which approved the new ball, that brought action.

Giles took a half dozen of 1943 balls and a similar number of 1942 pellets to the top of the stadium in Crosley field and dropped them, in pairs, to the concrete apron below. The groundkeeper, standing nearby, reported the 1943 models bounced only three-fourths as high as those of 1942.

The teams swing back into action today with the Philadelphia Phillies and the Boston Braves hoping to make their belated inaugurals. The former comes to Brooklyn while the latter is host to the New York Giants.

In yesterday's lone fray, the A's hopped on Joe Dobson for eight of their nine hits in the first six innings for four runs while Russ Christopher and Luman Harris combined to blank the Red Sox. Christopher started but was yanked in the eighth after issuing two consecutive walks.

POSSUM RUN GOLF CLUB OPENS TODAY

Possum Run golf club officially opened for the season today with Possum golfers reporting the condition of the course as good as could be expected after the long spell of wet weather. Sunshine of the past few days brought a vast improvement.

War workers on the second and third shifts will get a break at Possum this summer under announced reduction in green fees for morning play.

Downs Racing Meet Opens

Seven Hearts Drawn From Kentucky Derby.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (INS) — A nineteen day wartime racing meet which will include the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby gets under way at Churchill Downs outside Louisville today.

In addition to the $75,000 derby, which will be run next Saturday, such stakes as the Clark handicap, today's main event, Derby Trail, Debutante, Bashford Manor, Kentucky Oaks and Kentucky handicap will be offered.

* * *

The Clark handicap is a $2,500 allowance event for three-year-olds at one and 1-16 miles. Entered are Ball Player, Three Clovers, Sweep Swinger, Anti Climax, Last Gold, Best Seller, Shot Put, Corydon and Aletern.

None of the derby candidates whose chances are taken seriously will be in action today. Several will test themselves in the derby trial next Tuesday, while others, including Count Fleet, won't go to the post until derby day.

Count Fleet took the play in derby news today following announcement that he will test his speed over the three quarter mile distance today. Mrs. John Hertz' speedy colt, a 3 to 5 favorite in the May first event, covered three furlongs Friday in :38-2-5, giving a fine exhibition in the deeply mired track.

The Count's jockey, Johnny Longden, reported he had his hands full keeping the colt from running away. Trainor Don Cameron was satisfied with the colt's injured foot after the trial. The cut, on the left hind foot, was suffered last week in winning the Wood memorial.

One of the gloomiest spots at the Downs Saturday was the stable of J. Graham Brown, whose mount Seven Hearts was declared out of the derby late Friday.

"Seven Hearts will not start in the derby," Brown announced. "I am as sorry as I can be about it."

The grand slam fellow carried the hopes of many Downs fans following his brilliant win of the Arkansas derby. After his dismal showing in the Bluegrass stakes here Wednesday, it was feared an old foot injury had reoccurred. Brown said an examination confirmed his fears.

The last of the derby candidates, Slide Rule and Twoses, arrived Friday. Trials in the next few days will determine which of W. E. Boeing's entries will go to the post.

40 Schools Enter Wesleyan Relays

DELAWARE — (AP)— The 12th annual Ohio Wesleyan relays get under way today with a field about half as large as a year ago when 1,100 high school athletes took part.

Teams from some 40 schools compete for wooden trophies, substituted for the former medals as an aid to the war effort.

Each school places four-man teams in track events and three-man squads in field competitions with aggregate records deciding the winners. Preliminaries are scheduled in the morning and finals in the afternoon.

Cleveland East Tech in Class A, and Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home in Class B will defend their 1942 titles.

Managers Retain Lead

Pilgrims Drop Out Of 2nd Place Tie.

Managers clung to their one-game lead in the Moose bowling league over Secretaries last night at Colony alleys as each team scored a 2-1 win, while Pilgrims dropped into third place with a 1-2 loss. Two weeks ago the three teams were tied for first.

Les Malaska led the scoring parade with a 603 total, while Bob Hilborn turned in high game with 243.

BUCKS BLANK FOE IN OPENING GAME

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ohio State university today had chalked up a 3-0 victory over Michigan State, as the current baseball season started yesterday afternoon. It was the first of a two game series.

Don Grate, Greenfield Buckeye freshman pitcher, held the Spartans for five innings, retiring the 15 men who faced him in order. Ohio State obtained its three run margin in the third frame and held it throughout the game.

Gains Impressive Reputation After Late '42 Start

By WALTER L. JOHNS
(Central Press Sports Editor)

WOULD YOU consider us WACKY if we suggested that you don't overlook a WAVE when you're picking your Kentucky Derby winner—or have you quit SPARring around and decided that no horse can counter against Count Fleet?

The WAVE we're sandbagging is Ocean Wave, who may engulf the whole Kentucky Derby field come May 1 at Churchill Downs.

Ocean Wave, you may have heard, is a sleek, speedy colt sired by the same pappy who fathered Whirlaway, the greatest money-winning horse to hoof it on the nation's tracks. Ocean Wave, you also may have heard, has compiled a pretty impressive record after getting a late start last year and currently is ranked as one of the few hosses who may give the great Count Fleet a battle for the $75,000 pot of gold at historic Churchill Downs.

And, to help out the Wave's cause, let it be said here and now, that Ben Jones, the wizard trainer who already has saddled two Kentucky Derby winners, is the trainer of the chestnut-coated half brother of Whirly. Ben Jones led Larwin into the winner's circle at Churchill Downs in 1938 and followed three years later with the great Whirlaway.

Ocean Wave lost some caste earlier this spring when he was the overwhelming favorite in the New Orleans handicap and the Louisiana Derby at New Orleans and Hot Springs and then was beaten. Amber Light, a front-running speed demon who also is a respectable Derby candidate, just nipped the Wave by a nose in that one although some said a wee bit longer distance and the Wave would have caught him.

Then, in the Arkansas Derby, the Wave again was a big favorite to click. Seven Hearts, the Brown Hotel stable's hope in the Derby, zoomed out in front at the start, kept going under the expert handling of Jockey Johnny Adams, and whipped the Wave again.

Since then, however, Ocean Wave has moved to Louisville and in his first start a week ago, took the measure of No Wrinkles, a classy colt who also is Derby minded, in a driving photo-finish after No Wrinkles had fronted the Wave to the wire.

Ocean Wave can run on any kind of a track. He has had the benefit of winter racing, having run up three victories in a row this season at New Orleans prior to having been beaten in the New Orleans handicap.

As a two year-old last year, Ocean Wave started nine times, winning five and finishing second once, being out of the money only three times. In six starts this year he has been first four times and second twice!

Ocean Wave met Count Fleet once last year, the Count beating him by two lengths. But this was before Ocean Wave really began to run.

Lou Stuck for Mound Choice

Indians Return to Action With Detroit.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland's Indians faces his first pitching enigma today and must dip into his grab bag for a mound choice in the third game of the current series against the Detroit Tigers.

* * *

Among the available veterans, the Tribe's helmsman has Vernon Kennedy and Chubby Dean, or he could decide to try one of his recruits, Paul Calvert, Allie Reynolds, Ray Poat or Jack Salveson.

Boudreau eliminated Jim Bagby and Mike Naymick as possibilities by selecting them for duty in Sunday's double header with the Bengals. Mel Harder also is out as hurling choice. He will have had only two days rest since his eight innings Thursday when the Tigers white-washed the Tribe 4 to 0.

Al Smith probably will open the series with the Chicago White Sox Tuesday and Al Milnar is nursing a sinus infection.

In picking Bagby for Sunday's casting chores, Boudreau gives the right-hander only three days instead of the usual four days of rest between assignments. Bagby had easy going in blanking the Detroiters with two hits in the opener Wednesday.

PIRATES SEND TWO TO TORONTO CLUB

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League today sent Outfielder Maurice Van Robays and Rookie Pitcher Alfred Jarlett to Toronto of the International League, subject to recall on 24-hour notice.

Van Robays had been with the Pirates three seasons but his hitting slumped to .232 last season. Jarlett came from Harrisburg where he won eight and lost nine in 1942.

Player Upheld on Free Agent Bid

CHICAGO—(INS)—Keneshaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, today had upheld George Ferrell of International league's Newark club, in his plea for a free agency.

* * *

Ferell, player-manager of the Rocky Mount, N. C., team last season, contended that his salary was reduced in violation of his contract when it was assigned to Newark. When the Rocky Mount club disbanded the contract was taken over by Binghamton of the Eastern league and then assigned to Newark.

United Nations Relay Added to Penn Meet

Harrison Dillard, Star of Last Mansfield Relays, Wins Hurdles.

By AL FUNCH

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia — (INS) — An international flavor will be added to the picturesque University of Pennsylvania relay carnival today in the first running of the United Nations one-half mile relay championship.

On hand for the war-time competition will be naval units from the United States, Great Britain and the Fighting French. In the stands, rooting for their brothers-in-arms, will be delegations of each of the countries dressed in their own colorful uniforms.

Another feature attraction at the final session of the 49th annual relays is the invitation two-mile run, calling to the cinder-path that master of them all, barrel-chested Greg Rice, Notre Dame alumnus now burning up the track for the New York A. C.

He runs against a field of six, with Fred Wilt, of the midshipmen's school in New York and holder of the Franklin Field two-mile record, his chief competitor.

NYU and Notre Dame were easily the outstanding contenders in the first day of the meet. The Violet squad quickly annexed the 400-meter hurdles, the shot put and its first college quartermile relay championship of America. Notre Dame added to its laurels the distance college medley relay championship and the two-mile run—from which Wilt withdrew at the last minute, apparently to save his energy for today's invitation affair.

Oddly enough, although conditions seemed ideal, not a single record was bettered or evened in the first day and Mercersburg was the only school to retain the title with which it started. The Pennsylvanians held fast to their American preparatory school one-quarter mile relay championship at 44.2 seconds.

Bernard Mayer's 50-foot, 3¼ inch shot put led the field for NYU, followed by Notre Dame, while in the discus throw Ensign Hugh S. Cannon, of the Staten Island navy base tossed the disk 160 feet 2 inches for sweet victory over runnerup NYU and Notre Dame.

The sprint medley college relay championship of America went to Michigan in 3:29.7 as upwards of 5,000 fans in the flag-bedecked Quaker stadium went into frenzies. Runnerup was Fordham, at 3:32.2.

Muhlenberg, in 3:28 even, claimed the Middle Atlantic states collegiate championship, running ahead of Gettysburg and Lehigh, while Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace came in first in the invitation 120-yard high hurdles at 14.8. Second and third went to Virginia and Camp Lee, Va., respectively.

De Witt Clinton, of New York, nosed out Mt. St. Michael to take the high school medley relay championship of the nation. New York's Abraham Lincoln high took first place in the high school quartermile relays for the national title in 44.3. New Utrecht and Bayonne, N. J., followed the leader in that order.

Gives Secret Of Pitching

Fewer Throws Saves Arm of Moundsman.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Stocky Steve O'Neill, the Detroit Tigers' new manager, laid down a barrage of cigar smoke today and along with it a simple formula for conserving pitchers.

It's an old pitcher's prescription —control your throws for more strikes and fewer balls—and the war-time shortage of manpower enhances its importance.

Without benefit of a slide rule or chart, O'Neill believes any pitcher who makes from 110 to 130 throws in nine innings is giving a satisfactory performance. However, the great Christy Mathewson made as few as 80 pitches in a single game.

"When a pitcher gets over the 130 mark in a game," O'Neill said, "We know he is tiring and may need relief quickly. If a pitcher can keep his throws down to 130 a game there's no reason why he shouldn't be able to work again after three days' rest.

* * *

"Making your pitches count," he said, "is like shooting against par in golf. The real science of pitching is to stay ahead of the batter. If the batter gets ahead of you—say three balls and one strike—he knows and you know that you've got to put the ball down the middle or give him a walk."

Riddle, Gumbert Hurl at Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) Elmer Riddle and Harry Gumbert are the pitchers today as the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals endeavor to slug the ball mightily as far as second base.

The Cardinals still have to score a run in the 1943 season, and if Elmer is industrious, there may be no improvement today. The teams took Good Friday off.

* * *

To accommodate war workers, the Reds are going to play their Monday, May 3, game with the Pittsburgh Pirates at 11:30 a. m. and the May 7 with the Chicago Cubs at 5 p. m.

* * *

The Reds scheduled six exhibition games against army and navy teams. The games: April 30, navy team at Lambert Field, St. Louis; May 11, army at Fort Monmouth, N. J.; June 8, army at Camp Atterbury, Ind.; June 9, army at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; June 10, navy at Great Lakes, Ill.; Aug. 4, army at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

"Neither bombs nor bullets are the biggest wartime hazard for birds," one curator of ornithology says. 'Oil is a much greater enemy. Whenever oil has been spilled on water the birds suffer greatly. When subs were sinking many tankers along the Atlantic coast, the oil washed up along the shore became a great menace to birds because oil mats their feathers so they are unable to fly.

Bald eagles are North American birds and are not native to other continents. This largely explains why the bald eagle was chosen, back in 1782, as a national emblem of the United States.

The name "water buffalo" arose from the fact that the beast likes water. It eats the plants which it finds in ponds and marshes. It may walk into a pond until the water is over its back. Then it will stretch up its head so its nose is above water, and will rest in that position. Two or three hours may be spent by the buffalo almost completely under water. In that way it keeps cool on hot days, and also guards itself against flies and other insects.

No matter whether you enjoy your favorite sport in "woods," or on "waters," it's important to one's well being and health, to have these occasional periods of relaxation. What you like to do best is your business . . . but, supplying just the right sports equipment for its enjoyment, is ours. Come in, let us show you how well we're prepared to serve your sporting goods needs.

Cottontails are difficult to tame. In cages they show little fear, and young bunnies will eat out of your hand, but just give one a chance to escape . . . and it's good-bye rabbit.

Killer plants that catch and eat insects are fairly well known, but the bladderwort is one that eats fish. The plant's "stomach" floats at the water's surface and bears beautiful yellow flowers. It snares its food . . . very often small perch . . . by means of its rootlike branches.

Bruised, scratched and in need of a shave, Lieut. Tommy Harmon, Michigan's All-American football star in 1939-1940, is shown after his arrival at the U. S. Army base in Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, where he was brought by friendly natives after he bailed out of his army plane over the Guiana jungles. Two of Harmon's crew were killed and the other three are missing and being sought by rescue parties. Official U. S. Army Air Forces photo.

STOCK MARKET HAS ADVANCES BY FRACTIONS

Retail Spending, Boosted by Easter Business, Tops 1942 Mark.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances were in the majority during today's early stock market proceedings.

Improved at a fairly active opening were Republic Steel, Texas Co., Pennsylvania, Boeing Southern Railway, Goodrich and Phillips Petroleum. Numerous issues were unchanged.

On the side of merchandising shares was the Dun and Bradstreet survey estimating retail spending throughout the nation this week, buoyed by Easter purchasing on a large scale, topped the comparable 1942 period by 12 to 17 per cent.

REPORTS 12,000 U. S. CASUALTIES

OWI Reveals 1,500 Killed In Fighting Against Axis In North Africa.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — American casualties in North Africa total 12,000, including 1,500 dead, according to the war department and Director Elmer Davis of the office of war information.

The figures were released in response to a statement earlier this week by Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion who has just returned from Tunisia, that the Americans have paid a "terrific" price in the African campaign and that the army has not announced all casualties suffered to date.

The war department said that its figures included the period from the initial invasion through the battle of El Guettar. American troops occupied El Guettar March 18.

"Since the beginning of the North African operation," Davis explained, "various war department announcements have reported a total of more than 10,000 casualties. Some others have not yet been reported to Washington, but it is estimated here that the total from November 7 to date will not run more than 12,000.

Somewhat less than 2,000 were lost in the landing in Morocco and Algeria; and it is believed that the Tunisian operations all told have probably cost our army nearly 10,000 in killed and missing.

"Now, that is a large number, and of course it does not include the losses of the British and French. But these are goodsized operations; the enemy has lost more than 30,000 prisoners in Tunisia, and probably at least as many more in killed and wounded."

Mansfield Youth Faces Charge After Posing as Soldier

of impersonating an army lieutenant. He was arrested last Sunday by Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

In a written confession today to Detectives Howard Schuck and Herbert Palmer, the 17-year-old defendant said a soldier friend home on furlough loaned him the uniform last night "to see how it looked on me."

He looked so well in the military garb that he decided to keep it on for the evening, he told the detectives. Chief Bates said a charge of illegally wearing a uniform would be filed today.

the measure to the house floor Monday, May 3—the day congress returns from its Easter recess—under an agreement limiting general debate to one day, with a vote coming on the committee plan and its alternatives Tuesday. The fact that no record vote was sought in committee today came as no surprise for the line-up of the members has been known for days.

Robertson told newsmen the treasury had estimated the committee bill would "remit $1,400,000,000 in taxes on 1942 income under the present rates, leaving approximately $5,600,000,000 of last year's taxes to be paid off.

YANKS JOIN IN BATTLE TO TAKE TUNIS, BIZERTE

Second Army Corps Advances As British Score Further Gains.

the Tunisian ports of Sousse and Sfax for supplies.)

The Americans were about 15 miles west of Mateur and perhaps 30 miles southwest of Bizerte.

On other fronts, the British First army captured most of important Longstop hill, north of Medjez-El-Bab, and advanced about seven miles on the Bou Arada front south of Medjez, capturing the town of Goubellat and knocking out 16 German tanks in a powerful armored thrust that is still driving eastward north of Sebkret-El-Kourzia.

The First army was less than 30 miles west of Tunis, with its northern spearhead fighting to clear the road to the important highway junction of Tebourba.

On the southwestern front, the French were carrying out aggressive patrols between the First army and the British Eighth army, which was hammering at desperate Axis resistance about half way along the 15-mile road from Enfidaville to Bou Fiche, on the east coast of Tunisia.

Meanwhile, Allied air forces—especially American bombers—carried out a record number of 1500 sorties on Friday, probably dumping more high explosives on the enemy positions than on any previous day.

The reappearance of the American Second corps in the battle for the northeast Tunisian coffin corner was announced by headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander after a period of greatest secrecy regarding its movements.

The secrecy covered a swift movement of thousands of men and tanks and other vehicles from the southern front—where the forces under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., joined with the Eighth army—to the extreme northern sector.

The Americans, supported by heavy U. S. air force bombardment, attacked in the first light of day on Friday, striking both north and south of the road from Sedjenane toward Mateur and capturing three dominating hills. The Germans quickly counter-attacked but were driven off several times.

The Luftwaffe virtually was driven from the air on Friday and Flying Fortresses extended the Allied attacks as far as enemy supply bases in Sardinia. In all, only six Allied planes were lost.

The Allied air forces Thursday night and Friday destroyed nine enemy airplanes and set fire to a large merchant vessel 25 miles west of Sicily. Enemy roads, railroads and harbors were heavily pounded.

Edward W. Beattie, veteran United Press war correspondent, said that for the first time in the Tunisian campaign the First army appears to have sufficient men and equipment to effect a breakthrough to Tunis.

After touring the Djebel El Ahmera and Bou Arada sectors, Beattie wrote:

"The roads are jammed with vehicles and tanks and guns are still coming up. The First army finally is coming into its own and with the Allies is about to do a lot of work."

To the east, the Eighth army battled the German Marshal Erwin Rommel's African troops in the Atlas mountains above Enfidaville in an attempt to smash through the 10 miles of fortified hills before the Tunis plain.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces have advanced nearly six miles since they opened their attack on the Enfidaville line near the east coast. Most of the fighting is with bayonet, knife and grenade and their progress has been slow, but nonetheless steady, with casualties heavy on both sides.

With mountainous terrain preventing the use of vehicles, both the First and Eighth armies in large part are depending on mule trains for their supplies.

British Take Peak In Bloody Battle

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, TUNISIA, April 22, (U.P.) — (Delayed) - Eighth army veterans mopped up Takrouna peak and village with bayonets and knives in the bitterest death struggle at close quarters since they took the road to Tunis

The fight atop the 600-foot peak finally ended at 8 p. m. last night. At that hour the first real Italian fighters the British have met surrendered in a body, 326 of them. They gave up only because their ammunition gave out.

These Italians were tough, trained killers who didn't feel faint when stout British troops flung their comrades over cliffs to clear the road up the side of the steep peak and reach the village atop it.

They stood, fired and fought back and when they gave up they said the Allies wouldn't get to Tunis. They holed up in caves and crevices of the slopes and had to be dragged out before their machine guns and mortars were silenced.

Nazi Attacks In Kuban Area Slacken

MOSCOW — (AP) — The furious German counterattacks in the Kuban region of the Caucasus, which in the last few days had approached the intensity of an offensive, slackened significantly today as the Germans counted several thousand of their dead in addition to a heavy loss in airplanes ,tanks, guns and munitions, Russian front dispatches said.

The dispatches gave no immediate explanation for the cessation of the Nazi attacks, which had been marked by numerous futile charges against the Russian lines from the Black sea coast near Novorossisk, through the Kuban delta to the coast of the Sea of Azov.

The Germans lost almost 5,000 men and almost 200 planes in less than a week—probably far in excess of the losses they had counted on, it was reported.

Red Planes Batter Nazi Infantry Center

MOSCOW — (UP) — Two hundred Russian bombers, making the heaviest long-range Red Air Force raid of the war, left Insterburg, Germany's principal infantry and artillery concentration point in East Prussia, a mass of flames last night.

The army organ Red Star said the bombers attacked in waves of 20 to 30 by bright moonlight. First bombers over the target scored direct hits on troop barracks and artillery dumps in the eastern part of the city.

Insterburg, 30 miles south of Tilsitt, is a junction point for railroads between Eastern Prussia, Esthonia and Luthuania and serves as an important supply concentration point for German armies.

Important Convoys Reach Malta, Tripoli

By PAUL KERN LEE

VALLETTA, Malta — (UP) — Important convoys have reached Malta and Tripoli bearing vital supplies and war materials for Allied forces.

The vessels, including deeply-laden American liberty ships, traversed the Mediterranean under a powerful Royal navy escort and under constant air protection from the coast of North Africa.

One convoy threaded its way into Tripoli harbor past the wreckage of Axis shipping to carry munitions for Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th army.

The other, in which I traveled, brought to Malta the smews with which this battered island now is striking out at the foe with increasing vigor.

Downs, 495 Crescent road, was recovering today from injuries to her back, left knee and foot which she suffered Thursday when she was struck by a car as she walked on Crescent road near her home. Police learned that Mrs. Downs was injured by a car being backed out of a driveway by Mrs. Edna M. Stout, 1085 Park avenue west. Mrs. Downs was treated by a physician.

SCANDINAVIAN BLOW HINTED

Finns See Possibility of Allied Attack as United States Moves Legation.

ing might move into that area has been the growing tension between Germany and neutral Sweden. It was highlighted recently when a German merchant ship fired on a Swedish submarine in Swedish territorial waters.

The attacks launched on convoys of goods to Russia through Murmansk, chiefly from planes based in Norway, suggest the need of steps to protect those valuable cargoes. Some sources have asserted that the planes were based in Finland. The Finns deny this.

With the approach of summer, when perpetual daylight makes convoys 24 hour a day targets and icebergs force shipping close to shore, it is likely to become imperative that the northern route to Russia be made more safe.

Even if the American diplomatic move is only a mark of dissatisfaction, it culminates a long series of official actions showing displeasure with Finland. It leaves only a semblance of diplomatic contact between the two governments.

ment of Funafuti as a "minor base," but he said it was as valuable to the United States as all the other islands along the line of communications.

Knox was asked whether any others of the Ellice Islands, which extend for 350 miles in a northwesterly and southwesterly direction, were in American hands."

"That," he replied, "I wouldn't tell you."

Japs Develop Bases For 2,000 Planes

GEN. MARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—(U.P.)—The Japanese have developed bases for 2,000 planes in the island arc above Australia and Allied troops in the western part of the country are set to meet any enemy invasion attempt, Army Minister F. M. Forde announced today.

His statement came as a communique reported the probable sinking of an 8,000-ton enemy freighter escorted by three destroyers off Kavieng, New Ireland, and the penetration by Allied ground patrols to within seven miles of Salamaua, New Guinea, to wipe out a Japanese garrison of 20 men.

Noting the regularly reported Japanese reinforcements of their 2,500-mile arc of bases north of Australia, Forde said it was certain the enemy "wouldn't stay put."

Forde conferred at length with Sir Owen Dixon, Australian minister to the United States, on the war in the southwest Pacific. After the talk, Forde expressed "increased confidence regarding the future."

Greatest Air Assault Threatens Japan

LONDON—(U.P.)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's promise that the Royal Air Force will throw its full weight into the eventual assault on Japan gave promise today of one of the most concentrated aerial offensives in history.

Once the Axis has been defeated in Europe, it was pointed out, the United States and Britain can afford to concentrate large forces of four-engined bombers in China and—should Russia finally be drawn into the Pacific war—Siberia for full-scale raids on Japan proper.

Churchill's pledge was contained in a message of sympathy addressed to Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. army air corps, on the execution by the Japanese of some of the American airmen who bombed Japan last year.
